LODGE SUBMITS WORLD COURT PLAN

Two of Langley's Co-Defendants Plead Guilty

COVINGTON, KY., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Walter B. Carey, Canton, Ohio, and M. E. Huth, Alliance, Ohio, two of the four co-defendants of Congressman John W. Langley, Kentucky, on trial in federal court here on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government through a whiskey transaction in 1921, reversed their pleas of not guilty and entered formal pleas of guilty when court convened today.

The jury was excused from the court room while attorneys changed the pleas of Huth and Carey.

J. J. Clark, assistant manager of the Seelbach Hotel, Louisville, was the first witness today. He presented the hotel's register for the months of September, October and November, 1921, showing that Langley, Mortimer, Huth, Carey, Finn and G. Swarz had registered there several times during the months mentioned.

Attorney W. K. Gray, Philadelphia, representing Milton Lipschutz, Philadelphia, another defendant, presented a motion asking that all testimony concerning Huth and Carey be stricken from the records. Judge Cochran overruled the motion.

Huth and Carey were removed from the court room to prepare bonds. It is understood they will not be sentenced until after the trial.

Elaborate Preparation To Hang Himself

VERNEY, FRANCE, May 8. —(By the Associated Press) — Elaborate preparations for his final rest were made by Earnest Deshayes, a laborer, before taking his life here recently. First he invested all his savings in a handsome oak coffin. When it was delivered, he placed in it a soft pillow, a hot water bottle and a flask of old brandy.

Then dressing himself in his best, he hanged himself, choosing for the purpose, a peach tree in full bloom.

FOUND NOT GUILTY

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 8.—Peter and Ironim Sirbu, charged with second degree murder in connection with the killing of Dr. S. E. Conrad during a dry raid here last November, today were found not guilty.

Bandits Use Stolen Horse To Drag Safe Out of Bank

SAGINAW, MICH., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Robbers revealed a new technique in bank robbing early today when they used a stolen horse to drag a four-ton safe from the State Savings Bank at Harrison, Clare county. The safe is said to contained between $6,000 and $7,000 in cash and about $20,000 in Liberty bonds.

Marks of the horse's shoes, were clearly discernible on the bank floor this morning. The robbery occurred between 2:00 and 4:00 o'clock while the night watchman was at lunch, the horse being used, officers believe to drag the safe to the doorway and then on skids to the trailer of a waiting motor truck.

Bible In One Hand Gun In Other—Dead

KANSAS CITY, May 8.—(By the United Press)—Peter Gaston, who walked into the lobby of the Federal Hotel here today with a Bible in one hand and a revolver in the other, was shot and killed in a battle with police fifteen minutes later. Authorities believed he was a religious fanatic. Papers found in his pocket indicated he was from Pierpont, Michigan.

Coolidge and McAdoo Increase Their Leads

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF., May 8. —(By the United Press)—President Calvin Coolidge doubled his lead over Senator Hiram Johnson in the California primary election count overnight. The count today with few less than 600 precincts missing, gave him a majority of 40,224. The count for 6,370 of 6,974 precincts in the state was:

Republican
Coolidge	294,805
Johnson	254,471

The majority of William G. McAdoo over the unpledged ticket by which his delegates are opposed, was heavily increased during the night. The vote follows:

Democratic
McAdoo	105,283
Unpledged	12,360
McAdoo's majority	93,003

Husband Sees Wife Abducted

CHICAGO, May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—L. M. Hopps, a salesman, reported to the police today that two or more men in an automobile last night, seized and abducted his 27-year-old wife while she and her husband were walking. Mrs. Hopps, he said, formerly lived in Big Rapids, Mich.

Klan Has Control of Ind. G. O. P. Convention

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—With the Ku Klux Klan having put over its favorite Ed. Jackson, secretary of state, as the Republican nominee for governor, political interest today turned to efforts to define the organization's strength in the state convention and its probable attitude toward re-organizing party control.

The exact influence of the Klan in the state convention which meets May 21 and 22 to nominate the state ticket other than governor, was not known in the absence of returns from counties showing the delegates elected to the convention at Tuesday's primary, but the consensus of opinion was that the Klan had a majority of the 1,350 delegates.

As the returns from the primary neared completion, the tremendous force of Klan influence was established somewhat definitely. Jackson, to win the majority vote, polled 100,000 plurality over his nearest of five opponents. The Republican vote was much heavier than in the Democratic contest which ended with Dr. Carleton B. McCulloch gaining a big plurality vote, but failing of a majority, with the result that the nomination was thrown into the state convention that convenes early next month.

British Perturbed

LONDON, May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—The British cabinet is perturbed over Ulster's refusal to appoint a representative on the commission for de-limitation of the boundary between Northern and Southern Ireland as provided in the Anglo-Irish treaty. It is understood the government's legal advisers have definitely ruled that the commission cannot function without an Ulster representative and no way out of the impasse has been discovered.

Cabinet Officer Visits Ohio Farm

CLEVELAND, O., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur took advantage of his trip to this city, where he addressed the chamber of commerce of the United States convention Tuesday by visiting the farm in Mesopotamia, Trumbull county, where his mother lived when a little girl.

Secretary and Mrs. Wilbur returned to Cleveland last night with apples from a tree planted by Elias Lyman, Mr. Wilbur's grandfather, in 1862.

Coolidge Would Be Asked To Call Third Hague Parley

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Establishment of a world court at the Hague, to which the United States would adhere, was proposed today in a resolution introduced by Senator Lodge, Mass., chairman of the foreign relations committee.

For the purpose of creating the new tribunal, President Coolidge would be respectfully requested to propose the calling of the third Hague conference.

The resolution embodied a complete plan for the proposed court, it would be composed of 16 judges—four of them deputies, who would be selected by an electoral commission.

This commission would consist of a "general committee composed of representatives designated by the signatory powers, and a special committee composed of representatives designated by the United States, British Empire, France, Italy and Japan, together with representatives of five other signatory powers, which powers shall be selected by the signatory powers by a majority vote from time to time."

Members of the court would be selected by the electoral committee from a list of persons nominated by the national groups in the permanent court of arbitration.

The tribunal would sit at least once a year with extraordinary sessions authorized at the call of its president.

The signatory powers would recognize "as compulsory, ipso facto" the jurisdiction of the court in all cases of legal dispute concerning interpretation of a treaty; questions of international character; evidence of breach of international obligations and the nature and extent of indemnity for such breach.

TWO SCORE AMENDMENTS PENDING ON REVENUE BILL

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—The revenue bill, carrying the main provisions of the Democratic program, was taken up by the senate today for the polishing touches, with more than two score amendments by individual members and one committee amendment pending. The gift tax, inserted in the bill by the house and knocked out by the finance committee, was the first provision on today's list.

The Democrats yesterday gained one of their principal objectives when a graduated tax on undistributed profits of corporations—second on their program only to their income tax schedule—was put into the bill after a ten-hour contest. Republican insurgents who made possible the adoption of the Democratic income rates, again joined forces with the minority on the corporation tax.

Republican organization leaders continued hopeful today, however that a reversal of the income tax vote might be gained on the final test when the measure as a hole comes up for approval, but little indication of a break in the insurgent ranks was in evidence.

President Coolidge has let it be known that he even more opposed to the corporation tax adopted yesterday the provision for full publicity of tax returns, than to the Democratic income schedule.

The Democratic corporation tax plan was adopted last night by a vote of 43 to 32, six Republican insurgents voting with the Democrats. It would provide in place of the present flat tax of 12 1-2 per cent on corporations, a normal tax of nine per cent on corporation earnings and a graduated scale of rates starting at one-fourth of one per cent on 50 per cent of undistributed profits. A maximum rate of forty per cent is fixed, applying on all undistributed profits in excess of 60 per cent.

Searched for Weapons

MOBILE, ALA., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—All persons who entered the court room to attend the liquor conspiracy trial under way here, were searched for weapons today. The procedure was authorized by the court, it is said. Belief was expressed that the action resulted from a clash in the court room between two of the 69 defendants yesterday.

THE CRADLE OF ADVERTISING!

The infant, the new concern realizes it must advertise.

It also realizes it can not afford to spend the same large sums for advertising that the large established concern can.

Where, then, can it place its advertising on a smaller scale and still have the readers' attention?

A special section of this paper has been set aside each day for the readers' use — the Classified pages.

There all ads are classified and indexed. Every one on an equal footing.

There, the readers turn for their wants and advertise their desires.

It is there the "infant" business may gain readers' attention at a minimum cost.

President Forced to Forego WORK CONTINUES TO PILE UP ON HIM Hsi Before-Breakfast Walks

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—The steadily increasing pressure of work at the capitol incident to the approach of a congressional adjournment, has brought its reaction at the White House in the virtual abandonment by President Coolidge of the early morning walks he has been accustomed to take regularly since he entered the White House.

The president during the winter left the White House almost every morning, for a half mile walk before breakfast. Although still practicing the habit of arising early, Mr. Coolidge recently has been foregoing the walks in order to spend the time in his study going over matters coming before him in connection with completed or soon to be completed legislation. His only exercise nowadays is a long walk in the evening just after he leaves his office for the day.

President Expected to Veto Numerous Bills Now Pending Before Congress for Approval

BY DAVID LAWRENCE.

(Copyright, 1924, by The Times.)

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Nothing but vetoes lie ahead. President Coolidge has let it be known that certain bills pending in Congress do not meet with his approval and the only inference that now can be drawn is that he will veto most of them.

The President sent for Senators Lodge, Borah and Smoot today. He talked over with them the whole legislative program and the question of adjournment. The Democrats have in the last 24 hours indicated a change of front—they no longer feel that Congress should be terminated before the political conventions. Their opportunities for attack and publicity and continued investigation would be hampered they feel, by falling in line with the Republican plan of adjournment. Also there are too many bills in which the Insurgent Republicans and the Democrats have a united interest and which the Republicans would like to lose in the shuffle.

The President is plainly dissatisfied with the tax bill in its present shape. He hopes for a change in conference and will not announce an intention to veto the bill in advance of consideration of its merits after it comes to him. But many of the features of the bill are obnoxious to big business particularly that which makes income tax returns open to public inspection, that a

Fog and Snow Hold Up Fliers

ON BOARD U. S. GUARD CUTTER HAIDA, AT ATKA, ALASKA, May 8.—(By Wireless to the Associated Press)— Snow and fog, it was feared, probably will prevent a hop-off today of three United States Army Air cruisers from Atka Island for Attu Island, on the western end of the Aleutian Archipelago.

Everything was in readiness yesterday for the 530 mile jump but unfavorable weather conditions delayed the departure of the planes. A heavy fog hung over this territory most of the day while snow fell at intervals.

No word has been picked up by the coast guard cutter Haida's wireless as to the whereabouts of Major Frederick L. Martin, missing commander of the expedition.

Sentenced To Death For Corruption

MOSCOW—Two directors of Russian state textile truse are sentenced to death at Moscow after being convicted on charges of corruption.

Reunited After Being Kidnaped 53 Years Ago

QUINCY, ILL., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—A telegram of the Whig Journal from Robert T. Clark, at present in Joplin, Mo., says he has been accepted by his sister, Mrs. Bessie Sutherland, of Hastings, Minn., and C. H. Lieb, of Minneapolis, as their long lost brother, Freddie Lieb, who was kidnapped from Quincy June 25, 1871. Clark says he believes he will soon ascertain the motive which prompted the kidnapping.

Barton S. Tucker Happy To Be Father

NEW YORK, May 8.—(By the Associated Press) — Seventeen-year-old Burton S. Tucker, whose bride, Mrs. Susan O. Tucker, forty-nine, on April 22, gave birth to a daughter at Baldwin, N. Y., is "very happy" to be a father, according to a telegram which Tucker's lawyer says he has received from the young bridegroom in Los Angeles. The lawyer said he had received on Monday from Mrs. Tucker, who with her husband is under indictment in New Jersey in connection with their marriage, a telegrom which read "Letter follows. Full explanation."

C. of C. Conference Nearing Close

CLEVELAND, O., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Anticipating a report from its resolutions committee on a declaration against Japanese exclusion by law, voted yesterday by its conference on foreign trade, the twelfth annual convention of the United States chamber of commerce went into its final session today with the exclusion issue the dominant question before the gathering.

Election of officers and action on the report of the resolutions committee were the only business scheduled for the afternoon session. Addresses on science and business by General J. J. Carty, vice president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and on the opportunities and responsibilities of trade associations by Colonel George T. Buckingham, a Chicago attorney, were on the morning program.

Expressions of a score of economic questions as well as on exclusion were expected in the report of the resolutions committee.

Troops Guard Six Condemned Men Trying To Save The Italians

AMITE, LA., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—A last moment effort to obtain a reprieve for Joseph Bocchio, one of six Italians to hang here at noon tomorrow was underway today. Business men and women of the parish sponsored the movement with the consent of Mrs. Dallas Calmes and other relatives of her husband, for whose slaying the sextette was sentenced to death.

AMITE, LA., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—But for the presence of National Guardsmen patrolling the vicinity of the Parish prison, where Natale Deamore, Joseph Itini, Joseph Giglio, Andre Lemantin, Joseph Bocchio and Roy Leona, condemned to die tomorrow between the hours of noon and three p. m., for the murder of Dallas Calmes at Independence three years ago today, there was little outward appearance to indicate early today that within the next twenty-four hours wide attention would be focused on this little town.

The sextette who have unsuccessfully fought with every legal proceeding to save their lives, were brought to Amite yesterday from New Orleans.

Prison guards constantly watched every move of the condemned men against possible attempts at suicide. The announcement that their attorneys in New Orleans had ceased to strive for a stay of execution had no visible effect upon them.

Leona who stabbed himself yesterday in a suicidal attempt before leaving the Orleans Parish jail was not seriously injured, it was said.

EDDYVILLE, KY., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Whether the first triple legal electrocution in Kentucky is staged in the western state penitentiary here early Friday, depended today upon possibility of presentation to the supreme court of a plea for a writ of error in the case of Frank Thomas, 71, murderer, and action of that high tribunal.

The aged man, with a record of three men slain, faces the chair for the killing in Jefferson county of his friend and benefactor, Lee Arbegust.

With Thomas in the prison house are George Welch, sentenced to die for the murder near Louisville of William Oelke, a fellow farmer, and Charles Miller, negro, given the death penalty for murder of two railroad guards in Breckenridge county.

An effort to carry Thomas' case to the supreme court marks the final skirmish in probably the most stubborn legal battle in the state's history to save a condemned person. He first was placed in the death house here in January, 1923. Shortly before the date set for his execution his counsel obtained a hearing on his sanity in the Lyon county court and a jury declared him insane.

He was removed to a state insane asylum at Hopkinsville, and some time later a circuit court jury there declared he was sane. An appeal was taken and the circuit court's findings affirmed. Last week a petition for a writ of error to carry the case to the supreme court, was granted in the state court of appeals and the stay of execution withdrawn.

Then it was announced counsel would appear before the supreme court today in a final effort to obtain intervention.

Meanwhile the aged prisoner apparently had abandoned hope and declared he was ready to die.

Arguments on Removal Of Pullman Surcharge

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Oral arguments on the proposed removal of the railroad surcharge on Pullman travel was opened before the interstate commerce commission today.

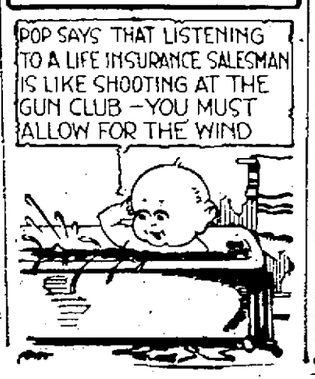

The proposal to remove the surcharge was advanced recently and an examiners' report to the commission called it unsound in principle and recommended its abolition.

Supporting the proposal are traveling men's organizations throughout the country, chambers of commerce, traffic associations and like organizations. The railroads on the other hand contend they would not be sufficiently compensated for carrying Pullman cars in their trains if the surcharge were eliminated.

AUTOMOBILE LICENSE LAW SUSTAINED

COLUMBUS, O., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—The Franklin county court of appeals today reversed Judge E. B. Kinkead, of the common pleas court and upheld the constitutionality of the automobile license law in all its phases. Judge Kinkead had held it unconstitutional in so far as it sought to impose certain fees on certain classes of trucks.

The collection of the license fees on all trucks of a certain tonnage has been held up because of the Kinkead decision heading the truck feature of the law unconstitutional and issuing an injunction against collection. The case probably will be carried to the supreme court by the truck people.

The suit was brought in the local courts by the Foltz Grocery and Baking Company, of Cincinnati, and the Fisher Brothers' Company of Cleveland.

Ever wonder what $2,000,000 worth of jewels would look like? Then study this picture. The young lady, who is merely a model, collection being displayed at is wearing the celebrated Manbous-the French exposition now appearing in the United States. SITUATION IN THE RUHR IS SERIOUS; 300,000 IDLE

BERLIN, May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—The situation in the Ruhr where 300,000 miners are out because of their refusal to meet the demand of the owners for the addition of an hour to the working day, is admittedly serious. Government circles evidently are deeply concerned and the hasty departure for the Ruhr last night of Labor Minister Braun in an attempt to settle the conflict, emphasizes the gravity of conditions.

The entire German press is apprehensive that the conflict may react unfavorably against German international conditions and foreign policy. Fear of disturbances is expressed, it being pointed out that the Ruhr miners are lacking in money and may be driven by hunger to plunder.

The limited coal reserves in the Ruhr are causing apprehensions of idleness in the big industries in the valley because of lack of fuel should the strike continue for many days.

The trouble started with a lockout by the owners when the demand for more working hours was resisted and the miners replied with a declaration of a general strike in all the Rhenish-Westphalian fields.

Activity of Irish Envoy Limited

LONDON, May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—The Irish Free State's representative in Washington, when apointed, will have the title of minister plenipotentiary but not envoy extraordinary, according to the Daily Telegraph's political correspondent, who says the scope of his activities will be limited to economic and financial questions. Professor Timothy A. Smiddy was considered certain of appointment to the post.

The imperial government, in acceding to the Free State's request, for such a representative, was influenced by former Premier Lloyd George's agreement to the appointment of a Canadian minister in Washington, the correspondent adds, but the international status of the autonomous dominions to which the Free State now belongs is very difficult to define, since their participation in the League of Nations as virtually independent units has obscured the position.

Coolidge Claims 953 Delegates

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—With only a few scattering states yet to be heard from the lineup of delegates for the Republican and Democratic delegations to the national convention next month is taking shape.

As a result of victories in California, Indiana and Maryland, President Coolidge has a total of 953 delegates, his headquarters claims.

Senator LaFollette, Wisconsin, has 28 delegates and Senator Hiram Johnson will have 15 with 113 still to be chosen or uninstructed.

Some of the delegates claimed for Mr. Coolidge are technically uninstructed, but are deemed certain to vote for him on the first ballot.

Demmies Will Have To Restrict Smoking

NEW YORK, May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Due to the presence of women and to fire regulations, smoking will be restricted at the Democratic National Convention, Joseph P. Day, chairman of the New York committee made this known yesterday when he announced that the committee had accepted an offer of a local department store to provide a club room for the use of delegates and guests at Madison Square Garden.

The Art Theatre in the garden will be converted into a lounge and smoking room with postal and telephone facilities. A special entrance will lead directly from the garden to the theatre through which the delegates may enter without going outside the building.

Methodists May Admit Women to the Pulpit

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Having voted yesterday to end the eighty years schism between the North and South Methodist Churches, the delegates to the Methodist Episcopal General Conference expected today to consider another change—the admission of women to the pulpit.

This will be the second time in the conference that women have asked for a place with the men in important functions of the church. A resolution ordering the placing of women on church boards was introduced last Monday by Miss M. Madeline Southard, of Winfield, Kansas, and will be reported later by the standing committee on temporal economy.

Will of Tammany Chief Is Found

NEW YORK, May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—The will of Charles F. Murphy, late Tammany leader, which was found in one of his safe deposit boxes, will be read Saturday, it was learned today. When Mrs. Murphy was unable to locate the document among her husband's papers in the Murphy home, she obtained a court order permitting a search of the deposit boxes yesterday.

Vulcan Last Company Files $100,000 Damage Suit Against Eastman Last Co.

The Vulcan Last company is demanding $100,000 damages from Ernest A. Eastman, doing business under the name and style of The Eastman Last Works, and F. Llewellyn Walker, Dayton, Ohio, for alleged libel in alleged false and malicious statements contained in letters sent out by the defendants in connection with the manufacture and use of remodeled lasts, on which, it is charged, Eastman by false oath and affidavit deceived the United States Patent Office and fraudulently induced it into granting him U. S. Letters Patent No. 1,448,548.

Plaintiff in its petition filed through Attorneys Milleg and Searl says that it has since 1900 been the owner of an extensive manufacturing plant in this city, for the manufacture of remodeled lasts, and ever since has been continuously engaged in the manufacture of remodeled lasts, which were of the same type and remodeled by the same process and method, and during which times it had a large trade throughout the United States, where its products are known for their excellence and legitimacy, and also for its business intergrity. The petitioner then recites that the defendant, Eastman from April 4, 1918, to April 1, 1920, was employed by plaintiff as superintendent of its last remodeling department, at its plants in this city, during which time it is claimed he ascertained and became acquainted with plaintiff's type of remodeled lasts, and the process and method by which they were so manufactured since 1900. It is then charged that Eastman well knowing that this type of remodeled lasts and the process by which they were manufactured were old to the art of manufacturing remodeled lasts, were public property and could not be patented, in September, 1920, filed an application for Letters of Patent of the United States in order to secure to himself a monopoly on this old type of remodeled lasts, and later obtained a patent by fradulent means, it is claimed.

The petition further complains that defendants sent out numerous letters to the trade, including patrons and prospective customers of plaintiff, fraudulently and maliciously representing to them through such letters, it is claimed, that plaintiff was an infringer of the alleged fradulent patent, intending to wrongfully and falsely convey, it is averred, that the Vulcan company without legal right, was infringing a valid letters patent belonging to Eastman by manufacturing, selling and distributing lasts, and that any one using remodeled lasts of the type manufactured by plaintiff subjected themselves to the payment of damages and penalties.

By reason of the alleged malicious and false libelous statements the plaintiff company declares caused various customers to cancel their contracts, required plaintiff to give bond to customers to hold them harmless from claims of defendants and deterred and prevented others from buying its remodeled lasts and other products, all to its damage in the sum claimed.

$20,000 DEAL CLOSED IN NEW BOSTON

A realty deal of considerable importance was closed in New Boston, Thursday, when A. Kaufman, head of the Home Store in that village, purchased the two story brick business block of the Bierley estate located on Gallia avenue, and occupied by the New Boston Hardware Company and the Wolff Clothing company.

There are 2 flats on the second floor. The consideration was $20,000 and the negotiations were handled by the Bierley Realty company. Mr. Kaufman stated today that he purchased the building, one of the best in New Boston, as an investment. It is located west of Park avenue.

North End Man Accidentally Wounded in Leg

Jess Cooper, age 28, of 1206 Waller street, was wounded this morning about 9:30 o'clock when a 38-caliber Smith and Wesson revolver in the hands of James Goodpaster, Sr., Twelfth street grocer, was accidentally discharged. The ball entered Cooper's right leg near the knee and ranged upward, lodging in the upper part of the thigh.

Cooper told the police that he took the gun, which was his own, to Goodpaster's store to sell it. Goodpaster had been examining the gun and snapped the cylinder clear around. He then put the cartridges back in the cylinder and started a conversation with Cooper, who was sitting in a chair at the time. Forgetting that the gun was loaded, Goodpaster pulled the triger again, Cooper being shot in the leg. Cooper was later taken to Hempstead Hospital, where the bullet was removed. Police, investigating the shooting, found it to be accidental.

Deal Means New Garage

Acquirement of John Delabar's property on the northwest corner of Seventh and Lincoln streets Wednesday by Henry Bayerl means another new garage for Portsmouth.

Mr. Bayerl stated today that he would erect a building on the lot 38 by 130 and two flats would be located on the second floor and a garage on the first floor.

The negotiations were handled by the Bierley Realty Co.

STORMY DEBATE OVER THE ADMISSION OF WOMEN

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—A stormy debate over the admission of women to the itinerant ministry of the Methodist Episcopal church occurred at today's session of the general conference. A special committee recommended that women be limited for the present to local pastorates. A woman delegate declared that women were being "shunted into a blind alley." An amendment to admit women to the itinerancy was tabled and discussion postponed until tomorrow.

Order School Amendment On Ballot

LANSING, MICH., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—The state supreme court today ordered that a proposed constitutional amendment to compel all children of school age to attend public schools be submitted to the voters at the November election. Brown County Prisoners Released

COLUMBUS, O., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Governor Donahey today liberated three persons convicted of Prohibition law violation from the Brown county jail on recommendation of State Prohibition Commissioner McDonald. All were serving onut fines and costs ranging from $300 to $500.

The men liberated were Albert Hensel, Henry Malott and Ora Boles. Hensel was sentenced in January by the mayor of Ripley to pay $500 and costs. The sheriff told the governor that liquor found on a boat in charge of Hensel belonged to another man. Hensel formerly was marshal of the town.

Malott, who is 70 years of age had been sentenced by the mayor of Sardinia, last September to pay a fine of $300 and costs. Boles had been sentenced to pay a fine of $500 and costs by the mayor of Georgetown.

Offer Blood to Save Babe

Here is one of the hundreds of tests made at Long Island College Only an ostrich would wear a sock on its head. But that's the only way to handle the bird. Other Hospital, Brooklyn, N. Hundreds volunteered for a transfusion, declared necessary to save the baby's life, but illness had caused a queer change in the child's blood and scientists believe none can be found to match it.

Barnes To Again Head C. of C.

CLEVELAND, O., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Election late today of Julius Barnes, Duluth, Minn., as president of the chamber of commerce of the United States for the third consecutive year was forecast by indications that he had been prevailed upon to accept another term.

The resolutions committee of the chamber of commerce of the United States today will unanimously report favorably on a declaration against exclusion of Japanese subjects by law, a canvas of the committee revealed.

Trail Opened Temporarily

The Scioto Trail is again open to travel just north of the city and will be several days, thus eliminating the detour via the Boulevard.

It will require 30 days to complete the new sewer being put down on the Trail and at various intervals the Trail will be open. "We will keep it open as much as possible," Edward Kelley, in charge of the sewer work, said Thursday.

Home Kiddies to Attend Grotto Circus

Henry J. Pollie and J. H. Barry of the Pollie Bros. Circus and Monarch E. V. Leach of Yezdigerd Grotto visited the Scioto County Children's Home this morning and made plans with Superintendent Howe to have the children and attendants at the Home visit Grotto circus in York park Saturday afternoon when another special matinee will be given.

The Portsmouth Public Service is to provide transportation for the children, a special car to carry them from near the Home to Washington street, a square from the show grounds. They will leave the Home at 12:30 o'clock. The J. I. Marsh Company will furnish a bottle of pop to each child, the Pure Milk Company will give an ice cream cone and the Gilbert Grocery Company will provide a bag of peanuts.

Needless to say it will be one big afternoon for the Home kiddies.

The big top was filled last night with 1970 men, women and children. At the children's matinee Wednesday 1700 paid admission of ten cents each.

The circus is growing in popularity and each night finds the crowds growing until many have to find temporary seats or stand. Those who expect to get into the reserved seat section are warned to come early. The circus comes to a close Saturday night.

Dr. Martin Buys Gallia St. Property

Another important deal was closed Wednesday when Henry Bayerl sold his property on Gallia street just west of Offnere-to Dr. Ira Martin, who purchased it as an investment. The lot is 41 by 130 and contains a cottage which is occupied by Dr. and Mrs. Frank Spencer. The negotiations were handled by the Bierley Realty company.

Berry Is Injured; Hit By Street Car

Frank Berry, 1139 Front street, employed on the city water works gang, was injured about the head and had a narrow escape from serious injury Wednesday afternoon when struck by the step of a street car while he was working in a ditch on Ninth street, just west of Offnere. Just as the car passed over the ditch Barry raised up and the car step caught his head, inflicting a scalp wound that was attended at the office of Dr. Tunis Nunemaker.

William Lieghtenheimer was foreman in charge of the gang and had just removed a bucket from the car tracks and told Berry to stay down as the car approached. Berry did not understand and stood upright just as the car reached the ditch, which extended from the curb to the car track. The car was in charge of Motorman O. B. Snyder, and when he noticed Berry, applied the brakes, which prevented probably a more serious accident. Louis Snyder was the conductor.

31 Individuals Indicted in Liquor Probe

NEW YORK, May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—A federal grand jury before Judge Goddard today handed up an indictment charging thirty-one individuals and a corporation with conspiracy to violate the prohibition act and defraud the government out of liquor taxes in transactions in the west and middlewest said to have aggregated more than $500,000.

Assistant Federal Attorney Lemon said the Benthel Manufacturing Corporation mentioned in the indictment and engaged in making hair tonic, had sold more than half a million dollars worth of alcohol to bootleggers in Chicago, Minneapolis and other western and middlewestern cities since October, 1921.

Election Board Organizes; Joseph Craigmyle Chief Deputy; Ex-Mayor Gableman Chief Clerk

Joseph Craigmyle, Republican, was elected chief deputy of the Scioto County Board of Election at the biannual organization meeting of the board Wednesday night, and William L. Gableman, former mayor, Democrat, was elected to be chief clerk, to succeed Attorney John F. Johnley, Republican, who has held the position for several years.

L. N. Harness, Republican, McDermott school teacher, who failed to secure reappointment and retired as a board member after serving but one term, was named as deputy clerk to succeed Seymour Bein, Democrat.

John Eidgenoss, Democrat, was the other retiring member, having served two terms and his place was taken by Edward H. Westphal, Democrat, former councilman, and George Butcher, Republican, Madison township farmer, succeeded Harness.

The board, which, besides the new members, Messrs. Westphal and Butcher, is composed of Craigmyle and K. N. Nagel, voted three to one in effecting its organization, Mr. Craigmyle voting with the Democratic members in the balloting, leaving Member Butcher standing alone in opposition. Mr. Gableman is a former member of the board.

Composers, Authors Want Protection From Radio

WASHINGTON, May 8. — Enactment of the Newton bill would perpetuate "parasite practices" of motion picture and radio broadcasting companies, Nathan Burken of New York, counsel for the American Society of Authors and Composers, today told the house patents committee.

The measure proposing to exempt motion picture and radio companies from the payment of royalties for the reproduction of popular songs, he asserted, would be unconstitutional, as it would destroy property rights under present law.

Mr. Burken said the motion picture industry began as a "parasite" by taking novels, stories and plays for reproduction, without lease or license until stopped by the supreme court.

Broadcasting is operated purely for profit, he added, and radio stations are competing with the legitimate theatre. If permitted to continue unbridled, will reduce the theatre to a state of beggary.

Exemption of the two industries from royalty payments he predicted would destroy initiative in the field of music and make thiss country dependent a formerly, on foreign authors and composers.

Crabbe Hands Down Ruling On Sentencing of Prisoners

COLUMBUS, May 8.—Any prisoner in the Ohio penitentiary, serving what the law terms a "general" sentence, is eligible for parole, after he has served the minimum term prescribed by the general code of Ohio, regardless of any minimum term fixed for him by the court under the Norwood law, according to an opinion given today by Attorney General Crabbe to Warden Thomas, of the penitentiary.

Citing a case of larceny, for which the General Code prescribes a penitentiary term of one to seven years, the attorney general ruled that, although a court had sentenced a thief to a term of "not less than seven years," the convict can be paroled after one year.

Warden Praises Opinion

"This does not mean that there will be a turning open of the gates at once," Warden Thomas said tonight. "The opinion, the best and most satisfactory one that has ever come out of the attorney general's office, from the standpoint of the prisoner and the prison problem, simply says they can be paroled, not 'must' be, he stressed.

Warden Thomas said he could make no estimate o fthe number of men who would be benefitted by the ruling but he pointed out that the determinate sentence law has worked injustices in many cases.

Chance for Redemption

"The indeterminate sentence law, which fixes the minimum term by statute, to be rquird of a man," the Warden said, "gives the prisoner opportunity to redeem himself and to return to society when he has completed such redemption. His release, of course, is up to the board of clemency.

"But under the Norwood law, which, incidentally did not prevent nor reduce crime, the man must stay in prison as long as the court prescribes, unless the governor comes to his rescue."

Tales of Conspiracy, Bribery, Coercion Told in Trial of Congressman Langley

COVINGTON, KY., May 8.—(By the A. P.)—Tales of conspiracy, bribery and coercion involving the prohibition departments of two states and men prominet in politics in Kentucky were told today in federal court here in the trial of Congressman John W. Langley, Kentucky, and four other defendants charged with conspiracy to defraud the United States government through illegal removal of whisky from a government warehouse in 1921.

Witnesses for the government told of "conferences" which took place in September, October and November, 1921, at Lexington and Louisville. These meetings were arranged in advance, witnesses testified, and were for the purpose of discussing transportation of whisky fro the Belle of Anderson distillery, Lawrenceburg, Ky., to Philadelphia and other cities. Congressman Langley attended most of the meetings, testimony showed.

As government witnesses, confessed members of the ring told of whisky operations and implicated Langley. Langley was paid big sums for his influence in securing permits, the alleged former associates of the congressman testified. When he needed money he applied to men in Washington who worked in conjunction with whisky dealers in this state and the money was given Langley as "loans" not to be repaid if the congressman was not successful in any particular piece of work, testimony revealed.

Politics was a big factor in the arrangement witnesses testified. The name of Chesley Searcy, Louisville, Republican national committeeman of Kentucky, was mentioned. Searcy gave Langley the privilege of naming a federal prohibition director for Kentucky, the jury was told, and Langley sought to influence the director in the discharge of his duties after the appointment, according to the witnesses.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon, 88, Has Busy Day

DANVILLE, Ill., May 8.—Between receiving and answering congratulations of Danville friends and telegrams from political colleagues at Washington including a resolution of felicitations from the House of Representatives, "Uncle Joe" Cannon's 88th birthday proved a busy and happy occasion.

One of the messages was from the Alfala Club of Washington, signed by a score of well known men in public life, headed by General Pershing. Another bore the "cordal greetings and best wishes" of President Coolidge.

Of a number of gifts he received, Uncle Joe probably enjoyed the most of two little girl neighbors who brought armloads of beautiful lilacs.

Last night Uncle Joe had a few friends in for a game of cards.

health is due to ignorance; some to greed; some to gluttony and some to simple carelessness.

"Ignorance of the cause and nature of many common diseases and of how to avoid them or take care of them in their incipiency is responsible for much chronic misery and sickness.

A healthy mind in a healthy body is desired by all. But the sick, like the poor, are all about us. For many years, I have devoted much time and sincere thought toward aiding mankind in an inexpensive way to avoid or correct the common ailments, by pointing to the well-known symptoms of the most troublesome minor ailments and suggesting tried and trustworthy medicines, free from opiates and habit-forming, injurious drugs, through the medium of the newspaper columns and a little guide book of 122 pages termed "Health and Beauty" which, through arrangement with the publishers I send free to any one sending address and ten cents. Many have written their high appreciation of the value of this book.

R. P. B. asks: "I am 43 and for nearly two years have tried many things to help me kidney and bladder trouble. Have to arise many times each night, losing rest thereby, and on arising feel stiff and sore with dreadful backache and puffs under my eyes. Have been told there is no organic trouble, so what can I do?"

Answer: A tonic-diuretic, neutralizing agency in the form of Balmwort tablets may be taken for the relief you desire.

P. and T. ask: "Both wife and self have been in a weak, run-down nervous condition, since undergoing operations which confined us in bed for many weeks. Appetite fickle, pale, thin and circulation not good. What can we use to improve health?"

Answer: I suggest Cadomene Tablets for the benefit they afford to the anemic blood and weakened nervous system.

Answer to K. C. C.: To improve the quality and quantity of your blood, build strength and avoid catching cold so frequently, try using Cadomene Tablets for several weeks.

Mrs. B. H. asks: "I want to reduce my weight, which is excessive, and wish to know if the Arbolone Tablets you so often recommend, are ever harmful to those who take them?"

Answer: In my opinion, backed up by observation and correspondents' statements, and the sale of hundreds of thousands of this tablet, they are not harmful when used as directed, but on the contrary, they seem to give almost universal satisfaction.

A. J. B. writes: "My blood and skin are in poor condition, because of a constant tendency to be constipated. Also am bilious and have headache, besides pimples, itching, and occasionally a bad case of hives."

Mrs. K. L. B. asks: "I have had a continued attack of rheumatism for over a year. Have taken many remedies, but the trouble grows no better. Aching, stiffness and soreness keeps me confined and being unable to do housework, please advise at once."

Answer: I advise that you try Cardiol tablets for a month or two, taking regularly as per directions. This tablet in my opinion is unequalled for the uncomplicated rheumatic affections. Five-grain Su-thol tablets afford quick pain relief and may be taken with Cardiol tablets as needed.

B. J. R. asks: "My mother suffers greatly with neuritis. Is there anything to help relieve the dreadful pain?"

Answer: Neuritis is a condition which your physician should handle. The analgesic power in triple strength Mentho-Laxene Salve may give relief if lightly applied without rubbing. Five-grain Su-thol Tablets are often effective in relieving the pain when of a rheumatic character, or in simple neuralgia.

Miss E. V. writes: "I hope you can tell me what to do to rid myself of stomach trouble manifested by bloating, gas, sour risings and a heavy, sluggish feeling after meals followed by severe headache, that only strong coffee will relieve, temporarily."

Answer: Watch your diet. Try to find and eat only that which agrees with you. Discontinue coffee if drunk to excess. Then take Trioptine Tablets to aid the digestive processes, and in a short time the distress should be gone.

Miss C. C. K. asks: "Will you kindly recommend a method whereby I may increase my weight and thereby improve my appearance? I am very thin and colorless and a few pounds is my wish."

Answer: Sleep in a well-ventilated room and take deep breathing exercises at least three times daily. Drink milk daily. As a nutritional tonic take Hypo-Nuclane Tablets, which contain elements often needed by the abnormally thin person.

Mrs. M. M. B. asks: "Can you recommend a sanitary solution for a douche which will not irritate or injure when a catarrhal condition is present?"

Answer: Obtain Vilane Powder, a simple alkaline antiseptic, which is never irritating or injurious. Directions come with each package.

Answer to "Mother": You will find Casca Royal Pills a most pleasant laxative for children and adults. Inexpensive and unusually mild, but certain to please you.

NOTE: For many years Dr. Lewis Baker, Medical Director, The Blackburn Products Co., 312 College Bldg., Dayton, Ohio, whose portrait is printed herewith, has in co-operation with associates, been aiding the public, by answering questions and recommending good, pure medicines for the common, minor ailments which are susceptible to home treatment. That his work is vastly appreciated and as an evidence of the esteem in which he is held, a few of the letters of gratitude that come to his office voluntarily in every mail are herewith printed in the form of brief extracts, the permission of the writer to publish having been given in each case. Each week a new list is published, representing sentiment from coast to coast.

LETTERS TO DR. BAKER

Anna Gross, 1732 Beucher St., Chicago, Illinois, writes: "I am a woman 55 years old and work as a saleslady in a loop store. I want to recommend your Casca Royal Pills to anyone for constipation. I would not change for any other, and you may publish this if you wish."

* * *

Mrs. L. J. Prettyman, 4411 Butler St., Pittsburgh, Pa., writes: "I have been using Casca Royal Pills for several years and they are the best laxative I have ever tried, and I had tried nearly every kind. I find them most effective, and there is no bad after effect, no cramps or sick feeling, and they do not "wear out" nor do I ever have to increase the dose, etc."

Edward Hoffman, 1234 Frankford Ave., Philadelphia, Pa., writes: "I thought I would write and let you know what Casca Royal Pills have done for me; for, I believe in praising anything that does good, and these pills should be praised to the highest. I think it the best remedy for bilious attacks or costive bowels that was ever made up. I have found them great for more than six years, etc."

* * *

Mrs. Anna Butler, 2168 Center Ave., Pittsburg, Pa., writes: "Kindly send me one of your great guide books, 'Health and Beauty.' I am very much interested in it since using your formula for rheumatism for my husband, also the Balmwort Tablets for his kidneys, and he has certainly had good results. Thanking you, etc."

* * *

Mrs. S. C. White, Plainview, Colorado, writes: "I am thanking you for your kindness and shall never be without Balmwort Tablets, and I would not take a thousand dollars for your little book, if I could not get another. I am now a well woman. If it had not been for Balmwort Tablets, I would still be suffering, etc."

* * *

H. Large, 244 Handcock Ave., E. Detroit, Mich., writes: "I received your book on "Health and Beauty," for which I thank you very much; also I am very pleased with Sulpherb Tablets. They relieved me of my trouble before I finished one box. I was suffering from boils on my neck and face. I was in awful pain. I am now all right, thanks to your advice, etc."

Robert L. Bonner, Lock Box 415, Goffeyville, Kas., writes: "About 4 months ago I commenced to use Cadomene Tablets. I was run down, had bad circulation and nervousness. I was very irritable and couldn't sleep well at night, but after using the first box I began to feel better, and after using 10 boxes I feel like a new person. You may use my letter for publication, etc."

* * *

Mrs. W. H. Stein, 977 Oak St., San Francisco, Cal., writes: "I have been using your remedies for some time. The Cadomene Tablets, the Sulpherb Tablets and the antiseptic Vilane Powder are all fine for what they are recommended. I have been greatly helped of nervousness and a nervous stomach trouble, with nausea and vomiting. Now I don't have that trouble, and am feeling better all the time, etc."

* * *

Mr. Ed. A. Wallace, 2046 Railway Exchange Bldg., St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I don't know whether a testimonial regarding Mentho-Laxene will interest you, as I presume you obtain thousands, but want to let you know that your excellent remedy has conquered many a bad cough for me. I am a showman, and am out in all kinds of weather, but never worry when I have Mentho-Laxene with me—the immediate relief given is almost like magic, etc."—

"Dreco" Was The First Medicine He Ever Took

But this well known Ohio man knew how to pick a good one so now he's as well as he ever was.

"Last April was the first time in my life I ever had to take a medicine," declared Mr. H. L. Erck, the well known City Inspector living at 1742 3rd St., N. E. Canton, Ohio.

"I don't know what caused it but just about that time everything I ate seemed to stick—my bowels wouldn't move—I was constipated all the time. Gas bothered me and sour acid substances rose in my throat. Couldn't eat solid food at all for it caused me all sorts of misery afterwards.

"Another thing that caused me a lot of trouble was phlegm in my throat and stomach. I smoke a great deal and this is probably what caused it. Was spitting all the time and you know how annoying that is.

"I felt so bad—so weak and rundown—that I thought I'd "cash in." I couldn't even sleep right at night. And for a man who's been healthy all his life to be as sick as I was, is no joke and I was ready to try anything that I thought would help me."

"Well, I didn't have to search long for the Dreco Expert. He gave me some straight from the shoulder advice that was worthwhile. I took Dreco according to his instructions and now I'm my old self again. Eat—why I can eat anything and at night I sleep like a top. The phlegm doesn't worry me at all now and my stomach is in fine shape. My hat's off to Dreco—no body ever made a better medicine."

Call today at Stewart's Cut Rate Drug Store and ask to talk with Mr. O'Connor, the expert from the Dreco Laboratories. He will courteously tell you of the merits of this wonderful remedy. Also he will honestly tell you whether or not he thinks Dreco will benefit you.—Advertisement.

Let Kellogg's Bran free your children from that dangerous disease—constipation

Children are subject to constipation. In the excitement of play, they neglect themselves and foster this dread disease. More than forty other diseases can be traced to constipation. Don't delay. Begin at once to cleanse their systems of the dangerous poisons.

Kellogg's Bran sweeps the intestine clean—and purifies it. It drives out the poisons which undermine your children's health. It makes the bowels function regularly and naturally.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is guaranteed to bring results if eaten regularly, or your grocer will return your money. It is guaranteed because it is ALL bran! Nothing but ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective. Kellogg's Bran is recommended by doctors everywhere—they know from experience that it brings results.

Have your children eat it regularly—two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. They will like its wonderful, nut-like flavor—so different from common brans which are most unpalatable.

As a cereal, with milk or cream, they will enjoy Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Try it in delicious muffins, bread, griddle cakes and other recipes given on every package.

But start them eating Kellogg's Bran to-day. Start every member of your family eating it. Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is made in Battle Creek and is served in individual packages by the leading hotels and clubs everywhere. Ask for it at your restaurant. It is sold by all grocers.

Ten Stolen Cars Recovered

HUNTINGTON, W. VA., May 8.—Recovery of ten stolen automobiles featured the activities of the police here.

The thefts were perpetrated in the majority of the cases on side streets in the down-town district.

"Joyriding bandits" were held responsible in all instances, running the cars until the "gas" was gone. Motorcycle officers retrieved the larger number of the stolen machines, which they usually found abandoned in the outskirts of town.

Oak Hill Woman Hit By Automobile

OAK HILL, May 8.—Miss Katherine Jones suffered a severe cut on her head and bruises when she was struck by a machine and knocked down on Main street. Miss Jones had left Twin Brothers Grocery and crossed the street, when she was struck by a machine driven by Ralph Foster, who was attempting to back away from the curb. The injured woman was taken to the office of Dr. Gomer E. Jones, where her wounds were dressed and later taken to her home, where she remains in a serious condition. She is a well known milliner.

City Takes Prominent Part in World's Workshop, Mr. Jordan Tells Exchangeites

"The Portsmouth community—a vital part of the workshop of the world," was the message brought to the Exchange Club last evening by Alan N. Jordan, introduced by President A. Graves Williams of the club, as one of the leading boosters of the Peerless City, a man with vision and with the energy necessary to act so as to make realities of the things his vision shows him.

Mr. Jordan stated that a United States survey showed that the coal used in the steel industry, located in the Pittsburgh district, was not sufficient to last the industries of that district more than 75 years. He stated also that a U. S. survey showed that there was five times as much of this kind of coal in West Virginia and Kentucky as in the Pittsburgh district, and five times as much domestic coal.

"The importance of this," he stated, "may be realized when it is known that experts say fully 80 per cent of the coal in Kentucky and West Virginia must come to the Ohio River between Huntington and Portsmouth."

"To complete this favorable location, Portsmouth and surrounding community enjoys in the Ohio River, with its dams and locks an unlimited supply of water," Mr. Jordan said. "The importance of water may be realized when it is known that the full available supply of the Mahoning River was used last summer in the Youngstown district and there was grave danger of a water famine there."

An idea of the amount of water used in a steel plant may be gained from Mr. Jordan's statement that the Portsmouth Works of the Wheeling Steel Corporation pumps daily 100,000,000 gallons of water, while the city of Portsmouth pumps about 7,000,000 gallons daily.

Of course, no talk by Mr. Jordan would be complete without a part of it being devoted to the "Waterway" from the Ohio to Lake Erie. He quoted from reports showing that the Portsmouth-Sandusky route was the best, and outlined the steps already taken to secure the choice of this route. Among other things he stated that the establishment of a huge lake, some 40 miles long was contemplated in the central part of the state, should the central waterway route be established. The big dam would be located near Delaware and the lake which would impound flood waters and feed the waterway, would stretch to the north a mile wide.

Through the connecting waterway thus established, Mr. Jordan forsees the great iron deposits of Minnesota coming to the Portsmouth community, and the finished products made possible through the meeting of iron and coal here, being shipped to all parts of the world by water.

"Just how great this traffic would be" said Mr. Jordan" may be realized when it is known that the traffic that now passes through the Soo canal is five times as much as that passing through either the Panama or Suez canal.

In closing his address, Mr. Jordan urged the thought that natural advantages were not the only things that make cities. He said that it takes men with vision and the energy to carry out their plans.

Commencement Held At Luman Chapel

Prof. George Crow, Dean of the Extension Department, Ohio University, Athens, gave the address at the Commencement exercises of the Scioto Rural High School, Jackson County, held at Luman Chapel Thursday evening, May 1.

The following program was enjoyed:

Processional—Senior Class.
Song—America—Everybody.
Invocation—Rev. C. C. Wise.
Song—America the Beautiful—School.
Presentation of Charter—Supt. J. F. Dixon.
Class History—Vancil Graham.
Class Poem—Mary Lesser.
Music—Trio.
Class Prophecy—Cliff Gallbrouner.
Key Oration—Muriel Gahm.
Music—Trio.
Class Will—William Graham.

Presentation of Class—Prin. S. D. Eckhart.
Presentation of Diplomas—Mr. J. H. Haley.
Song—Star Spangled Banner—Everybody.
Benediction—Rec. C. C. Wise.
Recessional—Class.

The Baccalaureate sermon was preached by Rev. J. W. Matthews, pastor of the Welsh Presbyterian church, Jackson, at the Luman Chapel Sunday, April 27. This is the third year of the school's existence, and the presentation of a first grade charter from the State Department of Education makes the people justly proud of the progress their school has made. Prof. Crow in his address stressed the fact that graduates from this high school had the same college entrance requirements as graduates from the schools of large cities.

Members of the board of education of the district are J. H. Haley, president, E. N. Johnson, J. C. Gahm, J. F. Messing, Alva Deemer, and R. W. Peery, Clerk. Principal S. D. Eckhart has been asked to take charge of the school again next year, but as yet has not given his answer.

Outsider Cops Race

NEW YORK, May 7—Thoroughbred favorites, most of which seem to be experiencing difficulties this spring again fell by the wayside yesterday when a rank outsider, Wild Aster won the $5,000 spring handicap and upset the hopes of several promising candidates for the Preakness stakes and Kentucky Derby.

Wild Aster, carrying the Greentree Stable's colors and a four to one shot won by a half length in the six furlongs for three-year-olds from the Rancocas stable's Brancadale, a top heavy favorite because of his recent triumph over Sarazen. Tester, another Rancocas entry, was third.

Apprehension and Time Exposure two other previously well regarded three-year-olds being pointed for the big spring stakes, were among the "also rans". The time was 1:11 1-5

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache — torpid liver — constipation you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them, 15c and 30c. —Advertisement.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is inexpensive and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Two or three teaspoonfuls is all that is required. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—Advertisement.

Miss Dolly Wise

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Dear Dolly—I am a girl of 19 and very much worried over my love affair. Dolly, I am going with a man two years my senior and he wants to marry me. He loves me better than any other girl and I would accept him, but my father does not want me to marry him and I would like for you to tell me whether to accept and elope with him or not? WORRIED LOVER.

Don't elope whatever you do. If you cannot coax your father to let you get married now, I would advise you to wait until you are 21 and then get married in the right way.

Dear Dolly—Will you please tell me what will remove rain drops and perspiration stains from a tan and orange colored crepe dress. And also if the same could be used on different light-colored crepe dresses with good results or on a net dress? WANT-TO-KNOW.

I think the best thing you can do is to have the dresses dry cleaned, and then wear shields to prevent further damage from perspiration.

Dear Dolly—I am a small girl going to school and there is a very bad boy sitting in front of me and he uses very bad language and even directs his insulting remarks to me. I have told the teacher on him and she moves my seat occasionally, but somehow he always seems to get near. Now, Dolly, what would you advise me to do about this? I am a good girl, if I do say so myself, and I don't want to have to listen to what mean boys have to say. DAILY READER.

If reporting him to the teacher does not do any good, tell your mother and have her go to the teacher, and tell her that something will have to be done to prevent that boy from polluting the whole school with his filthy talk. She should also go to the school board and see what can be done with boys like that. I think, however, if the teacher will keep this particular boy after school and give him a good talking to, it may have the desired effect.

Dear Dolly—Will you please tell me what will take grease spots out of a green crepe de chine dress? ANXIOUS READER.

Gasoline or any of the prepared cleaners on the market will remove grease spots.

Dear Dolly Wise—Please print in your paper as soon as possible the names and addresses of several printing offices in Columbus, Ohio, and also two in Springfield, Ohio, and oblige. INQUIRY.

The following are located in Columbus: The Capital Printing Company, Champlin Printing Company, Cherington Printing and Engraving Company, The Cott Printing & Index Company, The Crescent Printing Company, The F. J. Heer Printing Company. There are about fifty other plants and job offices, if this is not enough. In Springfield there are the Times Printing Company and the News Publishing Company. I don't know the names of the various job offices there.

Dear Dolly—To settle an argument, please tell me where the penitentiary of Illinois is located, Chicago or Springfield? Also tell me where Richard the Wizard can be located? PEEBLES READER.

The state penitentiary is located in Springfield, which is the capital of Illinois. I hope this will be the last time I am called upon to print the address of Richard, the Wizard, as I have run it about 'steen' times. Ralph Richards, Room 1312 Tribune Building, Chicago, Illinois.

CINCINNATI, OHIO—Dear Dolly I have a piece of dark green broadcloth that I would like to make a skirt with and I want you to tell me what I should trim it in. ONE OF YOUR READERS.

If you just want to make a separate skirt out of it, I would not advise you to put any trimming on it. You can make up for the lack of trimming on the skirt by wearing a bright colored blouse or sweater with it.

Dear Dolly—I am a soldier boy at Fort Slocum, N. Y., but expect to be transferred to Hawaii shortly. At present I am in the Post Hospital with the mumps. It is not very cheerful in here, so I would like for all the nice girls of your city to drop me a line or two to cheer up the bunch. I have a bunch of buddies with their faces all swelled out.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

THE STORE IN THE WOODS

Over the door was a sign.

Mister Bags had a cute little store in the woods, and one day when Nancy and Nick were out hunting for wild flowers, they found it.

They had their magic shoes on, that's why. Without the help of magic, they never would have found it in a hundred years.

And even if they had found it, they never would have seen it, half hidden in the trunk of a big tree, with scarcely a sign of a door.

That's what magic does. It opens your eyes to lots of things, and when the Twins came along, it was not surprising that instead of a lot of rough bark, they saw a funny doorway with windows on each side simply stuffed with things.

Over the door was a sign which said "Mister Bags—His Store—We Sell Everything But the Toothache."

Right in the front of one of the windows was a sign which said "Boy Wanted."

"That's always the way!" declared Nancy crossly. "You would think girls were in the road. They might just as well say 'Girls not wanted,' so they might."

"Well, when he finds out that we're Twins he will take you, too," said Nick. "You're half of me—sort of.

So they opened the little door which went ting-a-ling when they touched it, and walked right in.

And there stood a little fat man behind the counter, his glasses up over the top of his bald head, and his stomach stitking away out.

"Hello-" he said jovially. "I don't have many two-legged customers in here."

"We're four legged," said Nick quickly. "I've two and Nancy's two—that's four. And we're Twins, too—if you take me you'll have to take her for she's sort of—"

"Pickles and porcupines-" cried the little fat man. "What are you talking about?"

"Why, your sign says you want a boy and we came in to see about it," said Nick.

"Pickles and porcupines!" cried Mister Bags again (his name was Mister Bags.) "Is that what you little monkeys are up to? After a job, eh?" And he laughed and laughed until his tummy shook like Santa Claus', and all the tin pans on the shelves rattled.

When he had stopped shaking and the pans had stopped rattling, he went on. "Well, you both look smart, and that was a bright remark you made about legs. So I'll hire you both at ten cents a week to run errands and deliver my bundles."

"Thank you," said the Twins politely.

"Do we have to run?" asked Nancy. "Mayn't we walk sometimes?"

"Well now, I'll tell you a secret," said Mister Bags, leaning over the counter as far as his tummy would allow. "I knew all the time that you were coming. The Fairy Queen sent those shoes to you and they led you here. I'm a fairy myself, although I look more like a Brownie, I guess. All the wood people and meadow and water folk deal with me. I keep the general store for three counties and the three of us will be kept humping. Here's a customer now."

In walked Mosey Mud Turtle.

SOCIAL NEWS

Misses Vere and Margaret Crawford of Hutchins street were charming hostesses Wednesday afternoon when they received in their home, the members of the Wednesday Afternoon Sewing Club and a number of guests.

The time was passed informally with needle-work and social chat, the members greeting Mrs. Eugene Anderson and her daughter, Mrs. Walter Ainsworth, former Portsmouth residents who are making a visit to their relatives here.

Luncheon was served at the conclusion of the delightful afternoon. The guests for the meeting were, Mrs. Eugene Anderson, Seattle Wash., and daughter, Mrs. Walter Ainsworth of St. Louis, Mr., Mrs. Frank Moulton and Miss Clara Waller.

Mrs. Wells A. Hutchins will entertain the Club at luncheon next Wednesday at one o'clock.

Judge and Mrs. J. S. Thomas of Waller street returned Wednesday from a visit with relatives near Kinniconick, Ky. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas of Peebles.

Mrs. Alan N. Jordan of Court street has returned from a brief visit with Miss Mary Anderson of Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. McMurray have returned to Chicago, Ill., followed a visit with local relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Keiser and children of Fourth street have returned from a visit with their mother, Mrs. H. J. Keiser of Ironton.

Spring flowers in all their beauty and fragrance were used in the decorations and table appointments when Mrs. Julius Arbogast entertained with a charming May morning breakfast on Wednesday morning at eleven o'clock, honoring the birthday anniversary of her daughter, Mrs. Charles D. Hosey. The choice menu was served at the home of Mrs. Hosey and covers were laid for the following intimate friends of the honor guest:

Mrs. Robert E. Willis, Mrs. Henry Bayerl, Mrs. C. H. Samson, Mrs. Marion Haupt, Mrs. Russell Ketter, Mrs. Walter Gims, Mrs. John C. Willis, Mrs. Arthur Kugelman, Misses Nola C. Hosey Helen Dupre and Margaret Torges.

Mrs. M. E. Mackey of Wheelersburg, visited in Portsmouth yesterday.

The members of the We-Go Club of All Saints Parish will entertain Friday night with a dance at the Elks' club. Among the guests who will attend from out of town will be Miss Louise Bush's guest, Miss Georgeanna Smith of Huntington, W. a., who will arrive tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dinsmore of Cincinnati are planning to leave in July for London England, where Mr. Dinsmore will attend the American Bar Association which convenes there in July. Their daughter, Miss Jane Dinsmore has been traveling for several weeks with friends, and their sons, Joseph and Campbell Dinsmore will sail the fourteenth of June for a several weeks' trip.

The Woman Missionary Society and Otterbein Guild of the United Brethren Church will hold their annual mother and daughter evening Thursday in the basement of the church. Every member of the two societies should be present and all women of the church are invited to attend. Lunch will be served at the close of the following program.

COULD NOT WALK BECAUSE OF PAIN

Bad Case of Woman's Illness Remedied by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

St. Louis, Mo.—"I had such a bad case of female trouble that I could not walk because of the pains from inflammation. My back was all done up. I could hardly bend, could not go up stairs because of weakness, and no one could possibly be in worse shape than I was. I have taken 12 bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am a strong woman now and can work down any of my neighbors. They wonder how I can do so much work. I dare say that I have recommended your medicine to a thousand women. A little book was thrown at my door, and that is how I first learned of it."—Mrs. D. M. BEAUCHAMP, 1104 Morrison Avenue, St. Louis, Missouri.

Letters like this bring out the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They tell of the relief from such pains and ailments after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In a recent country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, 98 out of every 100 report they were benefited by its use. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Mr. William Frankie of 3184 Walnut street are leaving this week-end to visit friends in Waverly and spend Mother's Day with his mother, Mrs. Wilhelmina Frankie, of Chillicothe.

Sallie Ann SAYS

Choosing just the right hat to complete your costume is a real pleasure when you see the new summer styles that I found them arranging when I dropped in at The Fashion after hours the other day. Flowers are making their appearance. A charming gray hat had the crown circled with violets, and the silk facing exactly matched them. A dainty orchid creation was adorned with purple velvet leaves and the brim was faced with crepe de chine. Both were Lazarus hand made hats. All black hats are very smart this season. And, of course you have noticed the sets of hat and scarf to match.

JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES — THE CIRCUS ELEPHANT

BY ELTON

Jack ran over and patted his dog on the head. Now behave yourself, he advised. And Flip wagged his tail. Then Jack returned to where Boscoe was standing. The elephant trainer asked Jack to watch Boscoe while he went to get a little step-ladder for Jack to get up on.

Jack watched several more hands of circus people pass and then the elephant trainer returned. "Couldn't find a step-ladder," he explained, "but Boscoe will lift you up into your seat." And at the signal of Hi, Boscoe the elephant seized Jack around the wais

In an instant the little adventurer was being lifted into the air. And in the next instant he was sitting in the little seat on Boscoe's back. Then the great circus parade started and Boscoe and Jack were right in the lead. Jack Daw's next adventure is "Under the Circus Tent."

HIS BROTHER'S WIFE

by RUDY AYRES

© NEA SERVICE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The marriage of Dolly and Nigel Bretherton proves an unhappy one. When war is declared, Nigel is glad to enlist. He leaves Dolly under the care of Mary Furnival. Nigel is killed and Dolly marries an old sweetheart, Robert Durham.

Dolly and Robert sail for America and word comes of the sinking of their ship. When Nigel's brother, David, calls to see Nigel's widow, Mary is ashamed to tell him of Dolly's marriage. David mistakes Mary for his brother's wife and asks her to come to live at Red Grange with him and his aunt. Mary is given a hearty welcome to her new home. Monty Fisher, lawyer and old friend of David, asks David how he is getting along with Nigel's widow.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

David was lighting a cigaret; he did not look up as he answered.

"Splendidly, so far. Aunt Florence is delighted with her; she quite seems to waken the old place up now she is getting over her sadness a little."

"You think she felt Nigel's death very keenly?"

There was a slight surprise in Fisher's voice; he had had his own opinion as to the relationship between Nigel and his wife.

"I am sure she did," David answered quietly. "But when all is said and done, she is still young, and one cannot go on grieving forever."

"Exactly! I dare say she'll marry again; she struck me as being just the kind of woman to marry again."

David hurled the spent match firewards; there was a little pucker of annoyance between his brows.

"I think you are mistaken there," he said. "I should say she is about the last woman in the world to marry again."

The eyes of the two men met. Fisher looked away first; there was a trace of embarrassment in his face and voice.

"I'm sorry; I didn't mean to be offensive. After all, I hardly know Mrs. Bretherton."

He suddenly thought of his sister.

"By the way, when may we come down for the week-end you spoke of?" he asked, changing the subject rather abruptly. "Dora reminded me of it at breakfast the other morning. She seems very anxious to see the old place again."

"It looks rather cheerless just at present," David answered rather hurriedly. "Better wait till the finer weather comes; it makes a marvelous difference; I shall be delighted to see you both, then."

"Thanks—thanks very much." There was a sort of constraint in Monty Fisher's voice; he had not been blind to the evasiveness of his friend's words; he resented it.

Were things going to be different now between them? he wondered, with a sense of loss. They had always been such pals, in spite of their different positions. Surely David was not going to turn snobbish, and wish to drop his old friend?

He adopted his business manner; it was he who kept up the attitude of employer and employed until David rose to go.

At dinner that night he told Dora that David had been up to London. Dora looked interested.

"Why didn't you bring him to dinner? I should love to have seen him. Surely he's coming in before he goes back, isn't he?"

"He didn't say anything about it, my dear." Monty laughed rather awkwardly. "I mentioned the week-end visit, as you asked me to, and he didn't jump at the idea at all. Rather choked me off, in fact."

"What do you mean?"

"Oh, nothing particular. But he rather seemed as if he didn't want us just at present—talked about us going down later on, when the weather was better. Of course, it may have been my imagination, but it struck me that he did not want us."

Dora flushed a little. She pushed her plate aside.

"Have you done anything to annoy him, Monty?"

"Of course not! My dear child, what can I have done? I haven't seen him since that night he slept here, and I've only written business letters to him."

She sat staring before her with moody eyes. Just lately, since her open confession to Monty, she had been haunted with memories of the Red Grange. She had dreamed wild dreams and built wonderful castles in the air. Surely—surely they were not to be undermined and thrown down?

"I wonder if it's anything to do with Nigel's wife?" she said suddenly. "Perhaps she's been making mischief. You said she never liked you; perhaps she wants to keep all David's friends away from the house now." She leaned forward with a little added excitement. "Monty, do you know what I shall do?"

"What?"

Monty was only half listening.

"I shall go down to Red Grange without being asked."

"My dear child, it's impossible!"

"Oh no, it isn't! I can ostensibly go to see the Carews; they used to live at Selmont, you know. Oh, I know they've left now; but I can pretend I didn't, and then go on to David's. It will look quite natural, and I shall be able to see for myself just how the land lies."

"You can't force yourself on people who go out of their way to let you see you're not wanted."

Monty spoke decidedly. He knew that sometimes Dora's methods of getting her own way were very crude.

But she only laughed.

"It won't be forcing myself; it won't hurt David to give me a cup of tea. Dont be silly, Monty!"

He shrugged his shoulders; this was one of those occasions when he knew argument to be useless. He was not in the least surprised to come home the following evening and learn from the maid that Miss Fisher had gone down to Selmont to spend the day with Mrs. Carew.

He frowned, then laughed. After all, it could do no harm, and if Dora was really keen about old David—well, good luck to her!

CHAPTER XXXI

Not a Welcome Visitor

But it was the Red Grange, much more than David, that took Dora on that long journey.

It made her angry to think of Nigel's wife queening it there, where she herself wished to reign. She took extra pains with her toilet before she started, and she certainly knew how to dress well.

A man who traveled down to Selmont in the same compartment with her thought he had never seen a more beautiful woman. He wondered enviously whom she was going to see, and why she looked from the window so eagerly as the train drew into the station?

She had to take the one shabby station fly to drive the distance from the station to the Red Grange.

She inquired casually of the driver how long the Carews had left the neighborhood before she gave him David's address. She knew as well and better than he did, but it appeased her conscience.

Only Miss Varney was in when she reached her destination.

Her heart began to beat excitedly as she found herself once more in the beautiful hall.

"I SHALL GO DOWN TO RED GRANGE WITHOUT BEING ASKED."

How she would love to have this place for a home!

What luxury it would mean to be the wife of David Bretherton!

Miss Varney hurried from the drawing-room to meet her. She was a kindly soul, and had a welcome for everyone; but she had never really liked Dora Fisher.

If the truth must be told, she was a little afraid of her and her smart clothes.

"What an unexpected visitor!" she said, holding out her hand.

"But not an unwelcome one, I hope," said Dora quickly. She stooped and kissed Miss Varney's cheek affectionately.

"Do you know that I've done a most silly thing?"

"You remember the Carews? They lived at Holly Lodge. Well, Mrs. Carew used to be a great friend of mine, and I suddenly took it into my head to run down and see her. We hadn't met for months, and now I hear that they've left the place weeks ago."

There was laughing dismay in her voice.

Weeks, my dear?. Months!" said Miss Varney. "And didn't you know? What a pity! And you've come all this long way for nothing!"

"I don't mind, and I'm so glad you are at home! I had to wait ages for a train back, so thought I would run up and see you. How well you are looking!"

"We're all very well," Miss Varney answered, as she led the way into the drawing-room.

She rang for tea, and insisted on taking her visitor's wraps, though Dora protested that she could not stay five minutes.

"You must wait and see David now," the old lady declared. "He would be so disappointed not to see you!"

"Is he out, then?"

"Yes, he's teaching Mary to drive the car. Oh, I forgot; you don't know Mary, do you—poor Nigel's wife?"

"I've never met her, but Monty has, and he told me she was staying with you. She's very pretty, isn't she?"

Miss Varney hesitated.

Sweet-looking, I should call her," she said then. "She's such a dear child; I don't know what I should do without her now!"

"Has she been here long, then?"

"Nearly three weeks, and really I can't imagine how we stood the house without her. It's wonderful, the difference she makes!"

Dora looked interested.

"And so David is teaching her to drive the car. How nice!"

"Yes; she can really drive quite well now. But he's nervous, and won't let her go out alone yet. Of course, the lanes are rather narrow round here, and if anything happened to the child we should never forgive ourselves."

Dora bit her lip. So this was the solution! Nigel's wife had succeeded in ingratiating herself with both David and this old woman. Monty had been right, after all; and even if this girl found the Red Grange dull; and David uninteresting, she had been too clever to let anyone discover it.

"I should love to meet her!" she said enthusiastically. "I was so fond of poor Nigel!".

Prominent Down Town Corner Sold

One of the prominent corners in the down-town residential section changed hands today when the property located on the southeast corner of Sixth and Court streets, owned by James G. Whitney of Cincinnati, and daughter, Miss Maud Ziegler, of Sixth street. The house on the property is now being occupied by Officer and Mrs. Clarence Gee.

Miss Maud Ziegler stated today that she and her mother would erect a fine home on one section of the big lot and that the corner lot and one facing Court street would be placed on the market.

Hiram and His Flower Garden

Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California has been too busy with his presidential campaign to give the garden at his Washington home the attention it deserves. The flower beds are rather seedy this spring. And that's unusual in Hi's garden.

Durand To Enter Race

COLUMBUS, O., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—C. Homer Durand, of Coshocton, today obtained a petition from the secretary of state to enter the race for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. It had been intimated several weeks ago that Durand might not enter the primary contest, but file as an independent candidate on a beer and light wine platform after the primaries were over.

It is expected that Durand will conduct his campaign on a beer and light wine platform as he did two years ago when he ran third in a large field of candidates for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Triumvirate To Rule Tammany

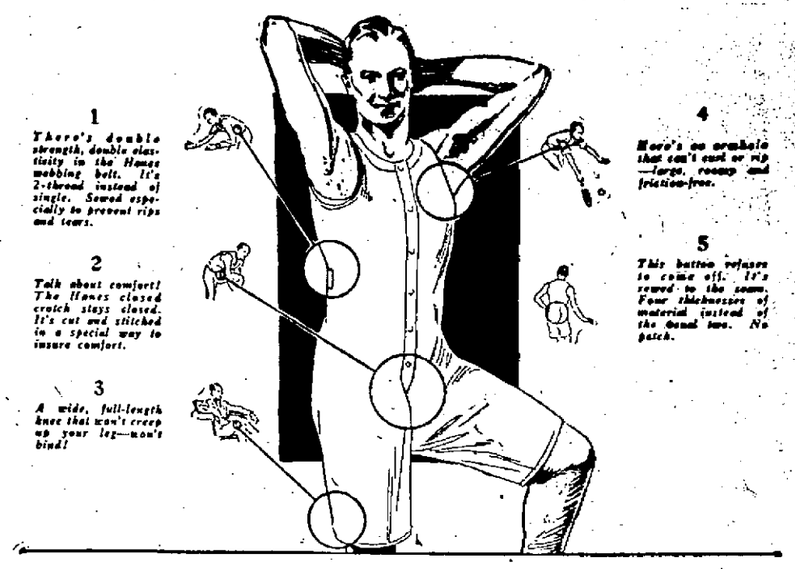

NEW YORK, May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Surrogate James A. Foley, son-in-law of the late Charles F. Murphy, has declined to be a candidate for chieftain of Tammany Hall, according to the New York Evening World today, which says a triumvirate will preside over the destinies of Tammany Hall.

The triumvirate, will consist of former Sheriff Frank Foley, Murphy's right-hand man, Frank Goodwin, clerk of the city court and Sheriff Peter A. Dooling.

PARIS "NECK FIXINGS" ARE PICTURESQUE

It is possible to be quaintly old fashioned and eminently up to the minute if one wears with a plain dress this charming kerchief arrangement from Cheney's Paris ateliers, reminiscent of the fichu of Marie Antoinette. This can be quite easily manufactured from either printed crepe de chine, or Chenette, if one desires a sheerer material. The kerchief is edged with white plisse. The two ends are sewn in very fine pleats and fastened by a veltyn ribbon.

Just a word of comfort—"Hanes"

PUT it down for a fact that Hanes Athletics will give you all-day comfort when summer shines and sizzles.

These five famous Hanes points combine to give you the best underwear service from the standpoint of quality and comfort that you ever got from any underwear since summers started to bother you.

Ask your dealer to show you Hanes Athletics. Read that guarantee that covers every stitch, thread and button. Did you ever see such amazing value for the money—one dollar?

Here are two more comforting thoughts. Pulling, twisting, stretching wear will never hurt Hanes Athletics. And there isn't a laundry or wash-tub that can wash out or shrink Hanes quality.

You can get Hanes Athletics for the youngster, also. They are made for boys from 2 to 16 years in the same quality and workmanship as the men's garments. Sizes, 20 to 34.

Spring Time Is 'Throw Away' Time

When springtime comes the thoughts of the housekeeper turn to "clean up," paint up and all that sort of thing.

And once you start at that cleaning proposition you find a number of things you feel like throwing away somewhere.

But the wise housewife knows that most of these discarded articles are valuable to someone else.

Junk is useful material in the wrong place.

Sell the things you no longer need thru a "Miscellaneous for Sale" ad in The Times.

You can telephone your ads and make the sale without a mite of trouble.

Wheat Crop Shows a Decline

WASHINGTON D. C., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Production of winter wheat this year will be 553,013,000 bushels or 3.4 per cent less than last year's crop, the department of agriculture forecast today.

Production of rye was forecast at 61,739,000 bushels compared with 63,023,000 bushels harvested last year, 103,362,000 bushels in 1922, and 66,370,000 bushels, the ten-year average.

The acre of winter wheat remaining on May 1, to be harvested was about 36,898,000 acres or 3,035,000 acres (7.6 per cent) less than the acreage planted last autumn and 2,624,000 acres (6.6 per cent) less than the acreage harvested last year which was 39,522,000 acres. The average harvested acreage of the last ten years is 39,522,000 acres and the ten-year average abandonment is 10.6 per cent.

Connecticut Democrats Do Not Instruct Delegates

NEW HAVEN, CONN., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—The effort of Delegate P. Fitch to secure adoption of a resolution instructing the twenty national convention delegates named by the Democratic state convention here today for Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, failed just before adjournment. A substitute resolution permitting the delegates to vote as their judgment dictates "for the best interests of the Democratic party" was adopted amid cheers.

Providing for the issuance of bonds of the City of Portsmouth, State of Ohio, in the sum of Eighty Four Thousand, Six Hundred Forty Two. ($84,642.00) Dollars for the purpose of rebuilding and improving the Hempstead Hospital of the City of Portsmouth, State of Ohio, in accordance with plans and specifications now on file in the office of the Auditor of said City.

Whereas, this Council has heretofore issued Bonds in the sum of Sixty Thousand ($60,000) Dollars for the purpose of rebuilding and improving the Hempstead Hospital of the City of Portsmouth, State of Ohio, according to certain plans and specifications now on file in the office of the Auditor of said City, and

Whereas, a Board of Hospital Commissioners has been duly appointed according to law and to have charge of the rebuilding and improving of said Hospital; and

Whereas, said Board of Hospital Commissioners has reported to this Council that funds heretofore raised for said purposes are inadequate for the completion of said improvement and have requested this Council to provide an additional sum of Eighty Thousand ($80,000) Dollars for the purposes of said improvement; and

Whereas, this Council has requested the City Auditor to issue his certificates as to the estimated life of the property, asset or improvement proposed to be acquired or constructed from the proceeds of the bonds hereinafter referred to, and the City Auditor has certified to this Council such estimated life as twenty-five years, and has further certified the maximum maturity of such bonds as twenty-five years; and

Whereas, this Council estimates that a tax for said bonds will first appear upon the tax duplicate for the taxing year 1924, and the final tax settlement with the County Treasurer next following the inclusion of a tax for this issue in the annual budget by the County Auditor as provided by law, will be obtained not earlier than the first day of September, 1925, and will require Forty Six Hundred Forty Two ($4642.00) Dollars for interest until such taxes are collected and available.

Now therefore, be it ordained by the Council of the City of Portsmouth, State of Ohio, as follows:

Section 1. That it is hereby deemed necessary to issue the bonds of the City of Portsmouth, State of Ohio, in the principal sum of Eighty Four Thousand, Six Hundred Forty Two ($84,642.00) Dollars in order to provide a fund for the purpose of rebuilding and improving the Hempstead Hospital of the City of Portsmouth, in accordance with the plans and specifications now on file in the office of the Auditor of said City; and, to provide a fund for the payment of not to exceed one year's interest on said bonds.

Section 2. That bonds of the City of Portsmouth, State of Ohio, shall be issued in the principal sum of Eighty Four Thousand, Six Hundred Forty Two ($84,642.00) Dollars for the purpose aforesaid. Said bonds shall be serially numbered from 1 to 85, both inclusive, and shall be designated as "Hospital Improvement Bonds;" said bonds shall each be of the denomination of One Thousand ($1,000.00) Dollars, except that the first bond, or bond No. 1 shall be of the denomination of Six Hundred Forty Two ($642.00) Dollars. Said bonds shall be dated June 1, 1924, and shall bear interest at the rate of 5½ per cent per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of December and June of each year hereafter until the principal sum is paid. Said bonds shall mature as follows, to-wit:

1 bond, No. 1, $642.00, December 1, 1925.
3 bonds, Nos. 2, 3 and 4, $3,000.00, December 1, 1925.

3 bonds, 83, 84, 85, $3,000.00, December 1, 1949.

The foregoing maturities are hereby determined to be in substantially equal annual installments.

The principal and interest of all of said bonds shall be payable at the office of the Treasury of the City of Portsmouth, State of Ohio.

Section 3. The said bonds shall express upon their face the purpose for which they are issued; that they are issued under authority of the laws of the State of Ohio, particularly Section 3939 of the General Code of Ohio, and in pursuance of this ordinance. Said bonds shall be signed by the Mayor and the Auditor, and sealed with the corporate seal of said city. The interest coupons attached to said bonds shall bear the fac simile signature of the City Auditor.

Section 4. That for the purpose of providing the necessary funds to pay the interest on the foregoing issue of bonds promptly when and as the same falls due and also to provide a fund sufficient to discharge said serial bonds at maturity, there shall be and is hereby levied on all the taxable property in said City of Portsmouth, State of Ohio, in addition to all other taxes, a direct tax annually during the period said bonds are to run in an amount sufficient to provide funds to pay interest upon said bonds as and when the same falls due and also to provide a fund for the discharge of the principal of said serial bonds at maturity, which tax shall be not less than the interest and sinking fund tax required by Section 11 or Article 12 of the Constitution.

Said tax shall be and is hereby ordered computed, certified, levied and extended upon the tax duplicate and collected by the same officers, in the same manner and at the same time that taxes for general purposes for each of said years are certified, extended and collected. Said tax shall be placed before and in preference to all other items and for the full amount thereof. The funds derived from said tax levies hereby required shall be placed in a separate and distinct fund, which together with all interest collected on the same, shall be irrevocably pledged for the payment of the interest and principal of said bonds when and as the same falls due.

Section 5. That said bonds shall be first offered at par and accrued interest to the Trustees of the Sinking Fund in their official capacity and if said trustees refuse to take any or all of said bonds, then said bonds not so taken shall be offered at par and accrued interest to the Board of Commissioners of the Sinking Fund of the Portsmouth City School District, and if said Commissioners refuse to take any or all of said bonds then said bonds not so taken shall be offered at par and accrued interest to the Industrial Commission of Ohio, and if said Industrial Commission refuses to take any or all of said bonds, then said bonds not so taken shall be advertised and sold in the manner provided by law under the direction of the Finance Committee and the Auditor, but not for less than their par value and accrued interest. The proceeds from the sale of said bonds, except the premium and accrued interest thereon and the amount of said bonds issued for interest, shall be used and is hereby appropriated for the purpose aforesaid and for no other purpose; the premium and accrued interest received from such sale and the amount of said bonds issued for interest shall be transferred to the Trustees of the Sinking Fund to be applied by them in the payment of the principal and interest of said bonds in the manner provided by law.

Section 6. The City Auditor is hereby directed to forward a certified copy of this ordinance to the County Auditor, as required by Section 5645b-1b. of the General Code.

Section 7. This Ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after the earliest period allowed by law.

Pre-Primary Meeting Speeds Up Candidates

COLUMBUS, May 8.—The calling of a Republican pre-primary convention to consider endorsement of candidates for state offices to be voted upon at the August primaries, has speeded up activities of potential candidates.

Even before the state central committee's action yesterday in calling the convention, former governor Harry L. Davis had obtained nomination blanks from the Secretary of State. Today Congressman John L. Cable, Lima, wired Committeeman C. S. Younger, Celina, asking that nomination blanks be forwarded to him immediately at Washington so he can make official declaration of candidacy for governor.

Both Davis and Cable are expected to file their petitions within a few days. State Senator John F. Burke, Elyria, and James A. White, former superintendent of the Anti-saloon league have already filed.

Congressman James T. Begg, Sandusky, and former Congressman Roscoe C. McCulloch, prospective gubernatorial candidates have not yet indicated when they will file. If they finally decide to enter the race, they are expected to file before May 20, the date of the special convention. It has been rumored that Congressman Begg may obtain the backing of some Ohio political leaders in Washington.

Judge Hickenlooper Asks To Be Relieved In M. Daugherty Trial

CINCINNATI, May 8.—Judge Smith Hickenlooper today requested Judge Arthur C. Denison of the United States court of Appeals to designate another judge to sit in U. S. District court here Saturday when the application of M. S. Daugherty, Washington C. H., banker for a writ of habeas corpus is up for hearing.

According to information available Judge Denison will name District Judge A. M. J. Cochran, of the eastern Kentucky district to preside. It was intimated that Judge Hickenlooper felt that to preside in this case in view of fact that his appointment was made during the regime of Harry M. Daugherty, brother of the banker as attorney general might subject the court to criticism.

Say U. S. Industry Is Without Sympathy For Jap Exclusion

CLEVELAND, May 8.—Business men firmly gripped a thorny problem of state today and gave expression to the view that American industry is without sympathy for Japanese exclusion by law.

A resolution expressing the sense of the meeting that "friendly negotiation" instead of congressional enactment should offer the approach to the solution of the Japanese immigration problem, was unanimously adopted by the foreign commerce section of the 12th annual convention of chamber of commerce of the United States.

Subject to approval of board of directors and the resolution committee of the chamber, whose report is due tomorrow, the declaration will be submitted to the final plenary session of the convention.

Teeth Stains Bleached Out New Safe Way

Say Goodbye to dull, yellow, stained teeth! For a new harmless treatment—Bleachodent Combination—bleaches away the stains and makes teeth flashing white—often in just three minutes. Treatment consists of a mild safe liquid, which curdles and softens the stains—and a new kind of paste, which gently removes the softened stains. Bleachodent Combination keeps teeth white by preventing the formation of new stains. Does not affect enamel as its mild ingredients are especially combined to act only on surface stains—not on the enamel itself. Only a safe, mild preparation like Bleachodent Combination should be used on children's teeth which are naturally soft and sensitive, and which are especially subject to stains and decay. Fine for the gums. Get Bleachodent Combination today, for few cents at all good druggists.—Advertisement.

Filipino Independence In 20 Years, Under Bill

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Absolute independence for the Philippine Islands in 20 years without the necessity of a plebiscite would be granted under the Fairfield bill as favorably reported today by the house insular committee.

The vote on the measure was 11 to 6. As originally prepared the bill would have provided a plebiscite in the islands after 30 years on the question of remaining under American sovereignty. By today's action the committee struck out this provision and cut down the period of American sovereignty to 20 years.

Find Jeweler Beaten And Robbed of $4000

COLUMBUS, O., May 8.—Anthony De Martino, 40 was found last night in the basement of his store, his skull fractured by a blow from his own gun and $4,000 missing from the safe of his jewelry store.

Police were notified of the robbery through an employe of a drug store adjacent to the Martino store, who said a strange man came into his store and told him "something has happened to De Martino and you had better investigate."

THEY BREATHE DEATH

Insects breathe through a score of pores. And when a breath of El Vampiro enters, the pests die. Why wait for them to find a poison powder or liquid. El Vampiro is harmless to man and animal. Man Dies From Bite Of "Harmless" Rattler

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., May 8.—Blood poisoning resulting from a bite of a supposedly harmless rattle snake tonight, caused the death of Boyd Wile, 39, in a hospital at Sharon, Pa.

Wile, traveling with a carnival, was bitten a week ago while transferring the snakes to their exhibit cases. Another employe, James McKay, of Cleveland, struck by another of the reptiles, was released from the hospital after a finger was amputated.

The snakes were all thought to have had their poison sacks removed.

LOOKS LIKE NEW HURTH HOTEL WILL BE ERECTED AT SECOND AND CHILLICOTHE STREETS; FINAL REPORT NEXT TUESDAY

Resumption of work on the new 100 room Hurth hotel loomed strongly Wednesday afternoon when at a stockholders' meeting it was stated that only $37,000 remained to be subscribed, and this, perhaps, would be done in the next few days.

Soliciting committees at work will make their final reports at a meeting to be held next Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Assembly room of the Security bank building.

Plans of the committee now include the erection, if the $37,200 is subscribed, of the hotel on the Turley building site, Second and Chillicothe streets, and the erection of a business block on the Hurth lot, Third and Chillicothe streets, this block also to be owned by the Hotel Co.

$250,000 will be required to begin work on the hotel, the committee states, and of this amount all but $37,200 has been pledged.

If the additional amount is subscribed, which is held by the committee to be practically a certainty, the Turley building, recently swept by fire, will be razed, and the fine new hostelry will go up on this corner.

Cooperation of the public in the project is asked, and the committee is meeting with ready response to their request for stock subscriptions.

The following business men are canvassing in the work of raising the comparatively small amount of stock necessary to make the project a reality.

Irving Drew, Simon Labold, George D. Selby, Vallee Harold, Floyd Fuller, George E. Kricker, Moses Lehman, Adolph Hurth, R. E. Scott, T. D. Smith, Gilbert Monroe, Albert Zoellner, W. W. Anderson, A. Child Falls off Fire Escape; Skull Is Fractured

Catherine, 3 year old daughter of Mrs. Lyda Hughes, of 512 Second street, is in Mercy Hospital in a serious condition, the result of injuries suffered in a fall at her home yesterday afternoon. Her skull was fractured.

The child was playing on the fire escape on the second floor of the Yeager apartments, next to the alley when she lost her balance and fell through the railing. Her head struck the ground, and when she was picked up by Marvin Houston, who happened to be in the alley at the time, she was unconscious.

The child's mother, at the time of the acident, was at work in the Selby Shoe Company. Houston soon located Mrs. Fred Yeager, who owns the place, and they drove the child to the hospital in Houston's machine. It was found there that her skull had been fractured.

At Mercy Hospital it was stated today that the child had not regained consciousness and its condition was extremely serious.

Steps Will Be Taken Tonight To Incorporate Bridge Co.

Final arrangements for incorporation of a bridge company to span the Ohio with a bridge at Portsmouth, will be completed at a meeting tonight of the committee sponsoring the project. The session will be held at the home of Mrs. Mary Burke, Fullerton.

The proposal reached the semi-final stage of realization at a meeting last night of the South Portsmouth Good Roads Association in Woodmen Hall. E. E. Fullerton of Greenup is to handle the work of incorporating the company, and was unable to attend last night's meeting, so that the session tonight has been arranged. Mr. Fullerton acted in a similar capacity for the Ironton-Russell bridge, of which he was a director until recently, giving up his position to take an active interest in the Portsmouth bridge project.

Announcement was made last night that the preliminary goal of $100,000 of stock subscriptions, had been passed, pledges received totaling $103,000. The pledges were taken under a permit from the Kentucky securities department authorizing $100,000 of subscriptions pending incorporation of a company.

Vanceburg will be a center of activity, also, by bridge workers as quickly as a company is authorized to sell stock. The Vanceburg Chamber of Commerce is left in charge of support for the bridge in their vicinity. They have agreed to bring in subscriptions for from $10,000 to $25,000.

Portsmouth visitors at last night's meeting included C. & O. agent D A. Grimes and Attorney Mark Crawford, who has been interested in the bridge project.

NOTICE TO ODD FELLOWS

To Renew Jap Exclusion Fight

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Renewal of the Japanese exclusion fight in congress appeared certain today as the result of the action of the senate and house immigration bill conferees in re-opening the question at the insistence of President Coolidge and recommending postponement of the effective date of the Asiatic provision until March 1, 1925.

The conferees Tuesday agreed upon July 1, 1924, as the effective date for the exclusion provision and their report was ready to be submitted to the house and senate. The president, who had urged a postponement until March 1, 1926, to give time for negotiations with Japan, immediately increased his efforts to bring about a greater delay than agreed upon by the conferees revising his suggestion to make the date March 1, 1925.

The conferees were re-assembled and accepted the new proposal.

Combined Choruses Show Skill in Rendition Of Pleasing Program in Bigelow M. E. Church

Concert chorus singing by the combined community choruses of Portsmouth and Ironton, in conjunction with national music week is a forward step in the musical life of these two cities, and the concert presented by the two choruses at the Bigelow M. E. church last night demonstrated the truth of this assertion beyond question.

The two chorus organizations, trained by Prof. Elmer Ende of this city, presented a pleasing program which was not only well arranged, but was compiled with a view to pleasing every member of the audience, a purpose which it easily fulfilled.

Accompaning the chorus were Miss Doris Moore and Miss Johanna Winkel, pianists, and Miss Lucille Anderson was the soprano soloist.

The choral work, combined, male, and women's choruses, and the individual city choral organizations, was done well, with splendid volume and appreciable technique and interpretation. Nothing but the greatest praise was heard after the concert, which was practically a repetition of the program presented in Ironton Monday night.

The audience was unanimous in after concert opinion that the co-operative singing should be repeated at least once each year.

The program follows:

Viking Song—Coleridge-Taylor.
Combined Mixed Choruses
(a) "May Day Carol"—English Folk Song.
(b) "When The Roses Bloom"—Reichardt.
(c) "Kiss Waltz"—Arditi.
Ironton Women's Chorus
(a) "Bendemer's Stream"—Irish Folk Song.
(b) "Carmela"—Spanish-Californian Folk Song.
(c) "Billy Boy"—Traditional.
Miss Lollie Anderson
"The Omnipotence"—Schubert—Miss Anderson, soloist.
Combined Mixed Choruses
"The Legend of the Bells" from "The Chimes of Normandy"—Planquette—Miss Anderson, soloist.
Portsmouth Mixed Chorus
(a) "Darling Nellie Gray"—Hanby.
Walter Adams, soloist
(b) "The Hunter's Farewell"—Mendelssohn.
Portsmouth Men's Chorus
(a) "Sweet and Low"—Barnby.
(b) "The Nightingale's Song"—Nevin.
Portsmouth Women's Chorus
Soldier's Chorus from "Faust"—Gounod.
Combined Men's Choruses

Says His Prescription Has Powerful Influence Over Rheumatism

Mr. James H. Allen, of Rochester, N. Y., suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him selpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery, which he called Allenrhu, to others who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. He has therefore instructed druggists everywhere to dispense Allenrhu with the understanding that if the first bottle does not show the way to complete recovery he will gladly return your money without comment. Fisher & Streich Pharmacy can supply you.—Advertisement.

Foley Not Inclined To Be Tammany Chief

NEW YORK, May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—The apparent reluctance of Surrogate James A. Foley to accept the leadership of Tammany Hall even with increased pressure, brought to bear upon him, may cause the selection of a successor to Charles F. Murphy to be turned over to a select committee when the executive committee meets this afternoon at four o'clock.

Surrogate Foley will probably be chosen if he accepts, although last night it appeared that only the urging of Governor Smith could change his mind.

Members of the Tammany executive committee conceded that it would be virtually impossible for them to agree upon any one except Foley and that with him out of the running the field would be open to any one of a dozen aspirants, many of whom are district leaders and certain to put up a fight in their own behalf.

Declares Politics Played In Conference

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 8.—(By the United Press)—Charging that President Coolidge used the immigration bill as a political football, Representative Sabbath, Illinois, Democrat, today announced his determination to fight adoption of the conference report on the bill in the house tomorrow. Sabbath declared politics was played all through the conference on the bill. He refused to sign the conference report.

This New Treatment Never Fails to End Piles

Many sufferers from Piles or Hemorrholds have become despondent because they have been led to believe that their case was hopeless and that there was nothing in the world to help them.

To these people we say: "Go to your druggist and get an original box of MOAVA SUPPOSITORIES." One of these inserted into the rectum according to directions will be found to give immediate relief. They reach the source of the trouble and by their soothing, healing, antiseptic action first allay the pain and soreness and then by direct contact with the ulcers and piles cause them to heal up and disappear forever.

It's simply wonderful how steadily they act. Blessed relief often comes in two days. Even in cases that have steadily resisted all known treatments, marvelous results have been obtained.

Fisher & Streich's Pharmacy and Wurster Bros., druggists, dispense MOAVA SUPPOSITORIES in the original box or can get it for you on short notice.—Advertisement.

Interesting and True Is Local Man's Experience

Every day new evidence of the power of Pepgen, the new medicine for stomach, liver and kidney ailments, now being introduced at Fisher & Streich's Pharmacy by J. E. Young to relieve the most stubborn cases of stomach, liver and kidney troubles.

Mr. J. W. Frazier of 2029 Gallia street is one of the many well known Portsmouth citizens who have come forward with statements of the relief which Pepgen has given them.

Mr. Frazier has been for many years a conductor on the Norfolk and Western Railroad.

"Until the 15th day of January I did not in my whole life know what it was to have a day's sickness. Then I was taken down with an attack of the "Flu." I was a sick man then and it left me in a weakened and run down condition. My stomach was all out of order. My heart action was not regular. I had a constant pain across the small of my back.

"During the past six months I never seemed to get hungry. What I did eat just did not seem to taste right. Then I lost weight and became very nervous. At times I would have severe attacks of gas and bloating in my stomach.

"Just about four weeks ago," continued Mr. Frazier, I stopped at Fisher & Streich's Pharmacy and happened to meet Mr. Young, who is there introducing his medicine. Pepgen.

"I had spent hundreds of dollars trying to get relief and did not have much faith that Pepgen would be any different from the other medicines I had taken.

"But Pepgen is different. It is the greatest medicine I have ever taken. It has actually put me back in as good condition as I was in 1919 before I had the flu.

"I have taken four bottles of Pepgen. I have gained seven pounds in weight. My stomach is fine. My nerves are steady. Now, instead of feeling tired and worn out all the time, I have that ready to go, glad to be alive feeling. Pepgen is what did it and I know it is a good medicine.

Southern Church To Act On Unification

NASHVILLE, TENN., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—A special session of the Southern Methodist College of Bishops is expected to be held here today or tomorrow to consider the action on unification taken by the Methodist Episcopal conference yesterday at Springfield, Mass., although senior Bishop W. A. Candler has not yet issued a call for such a meeting. Official notification of the Northern Conference resolution is awaited here, it is said, before definite action will be taken by the Southern bishops.

By unification, it was pointed out in Methodist circles here, the church would have a total membership of 8,400,000. The Northern Methodist Church now has 4,279,586 members and the Southern 2,405,257. Minor branches make up the remainder.

veto is rapidly becoming probable. When word however reaches the Senate that the tacking on of mischievous provisions may bring a veto, the chances are they will be eliminated as the Senate collectively or individually would not take the responsibility for defeating tax revision. Some Republicans think it would not be a bad idea to carry the issue to the country in the campaign pointing out that the Mellon plan is popular and that the Democrats and Insurgents would be held to accountability for blocking the plan.

Mr. Coolidge is going to veto the immigration bill if it comes to him in its present form. He has taken pains in the last 24 hours to explain that he was misinterpreted a week ago when he announced he favored exclusion of the Japanese. The Japanese themselves do not object to the principle of exclusion for they are beginning to recognize that it is an economic question in the United States and that every nation has a right to exclude labor likely to be competitive with its own. But the Japanese insist that the method of accomplishing exclusion is an offense to them. Secretary Hughes favors agreement by treaty. So does the President. Mr. Coolidge is trying to secure a modification. If he fails he will be compelled to veto the measure and ask for the insertion of a clause delaying the enforcement of the act so far as the Japanese are concerned until a year or more has been given for negotiation and ratification of a special treaty with Japan.

Mr. Coolidge's conferences with Senate leaders to point out the perils of the legislative situation have begun none too soon. The Republican leadership has lost control of the Senate and the exercise of the veto power alone will at this time affect the insurgent Republican alliance with the Democrats on specific issues.

"A Mother Is A Mother Still The Holiest Thing Alive"

For 364 days of the year, Mothers, even the dearest of them, are rather taken for granted. It is a beautiful custom to designate one day on which Mother is given nation-wide honor, and receives from her sons and daughters the little luxurious gifts she longs for, because she is a woman; and denies herself, because she is a Mother. The store is full of charming gift possibilities, for Mothers young and old. Would she like best a lovely lacy bit of neckwear, a shimmering silk frock, a string of creamy pearls, or a cozy lounging robe? Choose her gift now, and we will deliver it the day before Mother's Sunday.

For Summer Comfort You Require Generous Quantities of Cool Lingerie

Sultry days just around the corner are one reason why women are flocking to the May Sales of cool, fresh white Lingerie. Another reason is that these chemises, step-ins, gowns and princess slips are cut on the slim lines so desirable under Summer frocks, and trimmed in the approved flat fashion, with applique, bands of color, and fine lace applied with very little fullness. They are priced so advantageously, it is wise to stock up for months to come.

Gowns $1.25 to $3.50

Lovely assortment of Batiste or Fancy Crepe Gowns, lace and embroidered trimming. Regular and extra sizes.

PLANNING COMMISSION CREATED BY THE CITY COUNCIL; REMOVAL OF MARKET IS VOTED DOWN

Sidewalk Survey Ordered; To Clean Up Many Alleys; To Improve Second Street

City Council wrestled with many important problems through a session which lasted more than four hours Wednesday night during which several pieces of legislation were passed and a number of important improvement projects were discussed. The entire membership was present and nothing occurred during the evening to mar the handling of the rather heavy docket of business which included:

Rejected by vote of 5 to 4 a second request from civic organizations to remove market from Gallia square.

Created a city planning commission consisting of seven members.

Order plans and legislation for resurfacing of Second street, Market street to Scioto river bridge.

Discussed plan as recommended by Finance Committee to repair Second street, Chillicothe to Market.

Ordered survey of bad sidewalks which city will construct at cost of property owner.

Order city solicitor to take steps to eject business firms and others encroaching on city property on west side of Chillicothe street, Eleventh to Seventeenth.

Voted $800 to conduct clean-up of alleys.

Accepted deed dedicating for public use Third street, east of Maddock alley.

Vacated two alleys near Court House site, to allow use by county in building new court house.

Matter of buying land for cemetery purposes referred to Public Property Committee.

Removal of the market from Gallia Square which has been the subject of agitation for some time, bobbed up again when a committee representing various civic organizations of the city, headed by Postmaster W. H. Harsha appeared to urged their second request that the market be removed from its present location as a matter of public expediency. The effort of the committee proved in vain as at the conclusion of quite a lengthy discussion, a majority of the solons turned a "cold shoulder" to the committee by rejecting the proposal by a vote of 5 to 4.

Member Ray Duvendeck "broke the ice" by moving that Rule 10 be suspended, allowing Postmaster W. H. Harsha head of the civic organizations committee, to speak on the matter.

Mr. Harsha was accompanied by Atty. Russell K. McCurdy, representing the Exchange club; Atty. Edgar G. Millar, representing the Kiwanis club; James Yeley of the Auto club; and Mrs. Isabella Thomas of the Woman's City club. Interested in the movement are the Lions club, Rotary Club, U. C. T., and other organizations, whose representatives were unable to be present, but which had already addressed communications and resolutions to the council. Mr. Harsha represented the Chamber of Commerce, and is also a member of the Exchange club.

"We are not seeking the abolition of the market," Mr. Harsha said, "but are asking that it be removed, in the interest of public health and safety. Ninety per cent of the people of Portsmouth are in favor of the removal of the market and the measure, which has been advocated for fifty-five years, has now become one of necessity in the interest of safety and health."

Many Urge Removal

Atty. McCurdy urges the removal of the market as a matter of public necessity, and urged that the council take action at once. "Previously, action has been delayed because no site could be found," he said. "There are plenty of sites to be found, and action can be taken first and the site finally selected later."

Edgar G. Millar said "the market is no longer made up of farmers, but is largely composed of grocers and hucksters. No other city in Ohio would tolerate the market on the most prominent square in the city, where traffic is the heaviest. I am heartily in favor of removing it."

"Keeping the market on the Gallia street Esplanade is most certainly poor housekeeping." Mrs. Thomas, representing the Woman's City club, said. "It is a menace to health and safety, and most certainly a slovenly bit of housekeeping on the part of the city."

"It would be a benefit to the market to remove it to some other section of the city," Mr. Yeley of the Auto Club said. "Not only would its removal allow for expansion, but many more people would trade because of increased parking facilities."

Member Hooper Speaks

Member Hooper of the Market committee, which at the last meeting submitted a 2 to 1 report to retain the market in its present location, said he "partly agreed" with the committee waiting on council, but "believed in providing a place to hold market elsewhere before removing it from the Esplanade."

Mr. Harsha then submitted the following list of places where the market might be held:

1. Lower market square.
2. Foot of Chillicothe street.
3. East side of Tracy park.
4. Gay street, between Gallia and Seventh.
5. The triangle at Robinson avenue and Twelfth street.

Chief Robert Leedom of the fire department registered a protest against removing the market to the lower square, urging that it be removed from a zone of heavy traffic.

Mayor Calvert suggested that the fire chief call the state fire marshal down to Portsmouth to inspect the present site and others from the standpoint of traffic and fire hazard.

Mr Bryan Moves For Action

Member Robert G. Bryan of the First Ward, who differed with the market committee, advocating removal of the market, and at the last meeting submitted a minority report in which he urged such action, offered a motion providing for the removal of the market to the proposed Tracy Park site.

"It is nothing short of a crime to allow the market to remain on the most congested corner in the city," Mr. Bryan said.

Solicitor Johnson explains the three steps necessary to remove the market and take care of the city's interest in a small portion of the Esplanade which was dedicated for market purposes.

These steps he declared to be as follows:

1. An ordinance prohibiting holding of Market on portions of the Esplanade not dedicated for market purposes only.

2. An ordinance fixing a certain hour or short period of each year for the holding of market on the portion of the Esplanade dedicated for market purposes.

3. An ordinance authorizing the holding of market in some other place.

Rejected, 5 to 4.

On vote the motion to remove the market lost 5 to 4, members voting as follows.

Yes—Mr. Bryan, Miss Cramer, Messrs. Dickey and Duvendeck.

No— Messrs. Hooper, Hopkins, Moeller, Stedman, Stewart.

Create Planning Commission

The ordinance creating a planning commission was passed unanimously. It provided for a commission of seven members, whose duties shall be to investigate proposed additions, changes, etc. in the city, and to recommend by approval or disapproval of plans submitted, action by the council.

The commission will be composed of the mayor, service director, President of the Park Commission, and four citizens, who shall be appointed for periods of 1, 2, 3, and 4 years. Reappointments shall be for periods of four years, which will mean that one new member will be named on the commission every year.

The Second street resurfacing project was given another whirl when a report was brought in by the finance committee covering this project, among others.

Committee Makes Report

The finance committee report follows:

To the President and Members of Council:

As a result of deliberation in two meetings of the Finance Committee, the following recommendations are submitted:

Twenty-eight st.	$ 0660.99
Alley between Second and Third from Gay to Bond.	1411.20
Alley between Third and Fourth from Waller to Union	1713.41
Alley between Third and Fourth from Sinton to Waller	2103.17

Second—That legislation be prepared to issue bonds to take care of the property owners' unpaid proportion for

Poplar st.	$ 5789.00
Brant av., Coles Boulevard to 28th st.	11721.85

Third—That legislation be prepared for issuing notes in anticipation of the issuing of bonds for property owners' proportion for

Sewer in alley between 14th and 15th first alley east of Waller	$ 276.07
Sewer in first alley between 14th and 15th east of Findlay st.	276.50
Sewer in alley between 11th and 12th east of Gay	727.89
Sewer west side of Poplar St. from first alley north of Gallia st., north	452.47
Sewer in alley between 6th and 7th, Boundary St. to Broadway	800.66
Sewer in Linden St.	3284.26

Fourth—To prepare an ordinance, appropriating $40,000 for water extension and for the purchase of pipe and supplies. This $40,000 is unexpended money, derived from balance of water extension appropriations of the past, and will be used for water extension for Sciotoville, etc.

Fifth—To prepare an ordinance to transfer $800 from the General Fund to the Service Fund for the purpose of cleaning alleys.

At a joint meeting of the Finance Committee, the Street Committee, the solicitor and the service director, it was decided to recommend:

First—The extension of the Lawson Run sewer to take care of Twenty-third street. This was done from a business standpoint of conserving about $9000 for the citizens later on.

Second—The improvement of Second street: the same is to be handled in two sections: the area from Market street-west to be resurfaced with asphalt, in compliance with the petition submitted by the abutting property owners; the area from Market street to Chillicothe street to be repaired; and the Street Car Company to take care of their tracks as stipulated in their franchise.

This recommendation is made for the sole purpose of saving money for the abutting property owners as well as for the city. The money thus saved could be most advantageously expended in providing a better outlet from Second street to Front street at the approach of the bridge.

Should Second street from Market to Chillicothe be resurfaced, there would be such a small proportion of asphalt—a nine foot strip—from the car tracks to the curb, that traffic would be moving partially on asphalt and partially on brick; for there will be brick between the track rails and from twelve to eighteen inches on the outside of the tracks.

It is estimated that Second street, east of Market, can be repaired and placed in good condition at a nominal cost.

Very respectfully submitted:
EMMA M. CRAMER,
ROBT. G. BRYAN,
R. DUVENDECK.

The council adopted the report, ordering in legislation for the improvement of the street, by resurfacing, from Market street to the bridge.

Engineer Stevenson is to bring in estimates of the cost of this work.

The council will confer with the business men of that section of the city, with a view to repairing the strip between the car tracks and the curbing, between Market and Second streets, with auto license money, and having the Portsmouth Public Service Co. repair its track area, which includes eighteen feet.

The solicitor was instructed to take steps to collect back water works rent amounting to $227.00, from the Portsmouth Real Estate Co. at 948 Gallia street, and from T. C. Anderson on property at 1124 Gallia street.

The engineer was instructed to survey with a view to constructing a sewer from the north end of the Lawson's Run sewer to Cole's Boulevard.

A proposal to purchase ground for cemetery purposes was referred to the public property committee.

Authorize Bond Issue

A bond issue to purchase 115 fire plugs and other equipment for the fire department, was authorized.

Safety Director George Koerner recommended extension of the Hempstead Hospital elevator to the roof, to allow use of the roof as a sunning place for tubercular patients.

North Moreland Sewerage.

The question of North Moreland sewerage conditions came up through a communication from the Board of Health, and was referred to the street committee and the engineer, who are to arrange a joint meeting with New Boston council to go into the proposed construction of a sewer in this section.

Legal proceedings were authorized to obtain a right of way through land belonging to C. W. G. Hannah, for the Lawson's Run sewer.

Claim Highway Encroached

Engineer Stevenson reported that the D. Labold Co. was encroaching upon Chillicothe street from Twelfth street north to Fifteenth street, and that other property owners between Eleventh and Seventeenth streets also were encroaching upon city property. The solicitor was ordered to proceed at once to obtain the city's rights in the matter.

Need Of Sidewalks Emphasized

The need of sidewalks was emphasized by Service Director Wilson, who stated that sidewalks were badly needed in several sections of the city, where pedestrians were compelled to walk in the streets, thus endangering their lives.

The director was instructed to make a survey of the city, with a view to the city's constructing sidewalks where needed, and assessing the cost against the property owners.

Legislation was ordered in to appropriate $398 to pave the intersection of Rhulman avenue and the Scioto Trail.

$800 was transferred from the general to the service fund, and appropriated for cleaning streets and alleys.

$40,000 bond issue was authorized to pay the cost of water main extensions in several parts of the city.

Bond issues for $15,835.79 and $18,624.54 were authorized to pay the property owners share of certain improvements, after which the amount will be collected in assessments against the property.

The solicitor was instructed to compromise the damage suit of Earl Basham against the city growing out of alleged damage done to the plaintiff's property when the reservoir broke several years ago.

An ordinance vacating parts of Pine and Thomas alleys, for use of the county in building the new court house, was passed.

An ordinance receiving the dedicatory deed of certain lands belonging to Ed. Poffenberger and others, providing for an extension of Third street, was received, and legislation providing for the pavement of the street was ordered in.

Seek Improvements

Petitions for paving of the following streets and alleys were received and referred to the street committee.

Alley between Jackson and Charles streets.

Alley between Gallia and Eighth streets, Lincoln to Campbell.

Gallia, on the west side, from Lindsey Hollow to the Scioto bridge, Sciotoville. Sidewalks sought.

Council is Asked to Vacate

Fifth street, Broadway street, east to the end of the street, by C. W. G. Hahnan, real estate dealer, in a petition presented last night.

A petition was also received and referred to the law and claims committee, in which John A. Richter and others protest assessments for the improvement of lower Fourth street, claiming no service was had and that they received no opportunity to protest the improvefent.

WORK PROGRESSING

Work on the five room bungalow being constructed by James Waldo in City View, West Portsmouth, is progressing rapidly, and the home will soon be ready for occupancy by the owner and family.

MR. HENRY HOEFER, Wheeling, W. Va.

One of the most recent statements received regarding the new remedy, Ka-di-ok, now being introduced here, which verifies the claim made for this preparation, is a signed testimonial from Mr. Henry Hoefer, who lives at 924 Market street, Wheeling, W. Va. Mr. Hoefer is seventy-five years, old, and a member of the G. A. R. He is a carpenter by trade and is still actively engaged in his work. He said:

"I had been in poor health for a long time due to trouble with my stomach and kidneys. I had frequent attacks of indigestion after eating which caused me a lot of distress and suffering. I never was able to sleep well, as I would wake up every hour or so during the night. To make matters worse I had a severe hacking cough, which wracked me to pieces.

"I heard of Ka-di-ok and decided to give it a trial, although I was very skeptical, as nothing I had previously taken had done me any real good. I purchased a bottle and am very glad that I did. I noticed immediate improvement, and now after taking a short treatment I feel like a well man. My stomach trouble is decidedly better, and my kidneys have not bothered me at all of late. I sleep all night and get up rested. I can recommend Ka-di-ok very highly to any one suffering as I did."

Democrats Postpone Meeting Until Aug. 19

COLUMBUS, O., May 8.—The Democratic state convention which was to have been held in Columbus May 11 has been postponed to Aug. 19, Fred J. Heer, of Columbus, secretary of the State Central committee announced tonight.

In making the announcement Mr. Heer said postponement was agreed by State Chairman W. W. Durbin, Governor Donahey, former Governor Cox and members of the state central committee today in telephone conversations. The committee will meet here Saturday to formally ratify the postponement. Postponement was made because it was thought best to wait and hold the state convention after the national convention.

Taxed the Costs

Grover Dodds of Minford was arrested Monday evening by constables Lawrence Debo and Carl Bonzo on an assault charge preferred by L. O. Allen.

When arraigned before Squire Allen Stockham of Madison township, Dodds pleaded guilty to the charge and was taxed the costs and released. The charges grew out of an affair staged Sunday morning when Dodds presented himself at Allen's home and threatened to slap him, the complainant declares. Neighbors interfered and quieted the row.

Jap Exclusion To Be Deferred Until Next Year

WASHINGTON, May 8.—President Coolidge by strenuous last minute efforts today obtained from senate and house immigration bill conferees, an agreement to recommend postponement of statutory Japanese exclusion until March 1, 1925. Such a postponement would give the state department opportunity to negotiate wih Japan for exclusion by treaty.

Confronted with the prospect of exclusion effective July 1, next, as agreed to yesterday by the conferees, the president held a number of hurried conferences with the result that conference committee at a session late in the day rescinded their previous action and voted for the new effective date.

Insistence by the president for the delay in operation of the exclusion section was the reason given by the conferes for their unusual action. Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, as spokesman for the conferees said the new provision had been proposed by the house members "at the request of the president," and had been accepted by the senate members for that reason.

Sale Starts May 24

Realtor Marvin C. Clark has advanced date for opening his Lucasville subdivision, to May 24 instead of Decoration Day, it was announced yesterday.

Work of preparing the tract for opening, is practically completed. Streets have been laid out, sidewalks constructed, and shade trees placed on the front of every lot. All lots have a frontage of 40 feet.

She Locates Husband After 7-Year Search, Lands Him In Jail

CINCINNATI, May 8.—A seven year search by Mrs. Alice A. New, Pueblo, Colo., for her husband, Thomas E. New, 37, radio engineer, ended here when he was arrested on charges for failure to provide.

Mrs. New said she followed hundreds of clews to the whereabouts of her husband. All failed. Recently she received word that he was married again and living in Cincinnati. She arrived here yesterday with her two children and located her husband. New was arrested at his home. The officers who arrested him reported he has another wife and child. New refused to discuss his case.

WILL MEET FRIDAY

The semi-monthly meeting of New Boston Council scheduled for Tuesday night brought out only three members, Dr. T. H. McCann, Earl Wolfe and Joseph Allen and they adjourned the meeting until Friday night. At this meeting the alley improvement ordinances will be considered. Type of construction of the improvement will not be decided upon until bids are opened. Councilmen are said to be adverse to putting down a thick concrete base with first class bricks.

LOCAL WOMAN HEADS N. P. A.; LORAIN GETS NEXT MEETING

Mrs. Rosa Ward New President

MRS ROSA WARD

Mrs. Ward of this city, District Manager for the N. P. L. A., was elected to the office of State President today.

Election of Mrs. Rosa Ward of this city, one of the live wire district managers in the state to the offic eof State President and selection of Lorain at the place for the 1925 meeting featured the Thursday morning session of the eight annual convention of the Ohio State Association of the National Protective Life Association meeting in the Elk's club room. Hamilton delegates were also after the ninth annual convention but Lorain made a strong bid for the state wide meeting and landed it. Hamilton being the choice for the 1926 meetig. Hamilton was opposed to Lorain for next year as the national convention is to be held in Cleveland Sept. 1925, giving northern Ohio two conventions in the same year.

Portsmouth, honored by having the state convention come here was further honored by having Mrs. Ward Chaplain in the State Association this year chosen for the office of State President, succeeding Fred Billings of Lorain who was elected to the office of Past President. Other officers are Vice-President, Mrs. Kathryn Smith; Chaplain, Mrs. Mary Telshaw, Youngstown; Conductress, Mrs. Mary Mars, Lorain; Secretary, Mrs. Nellie M. Cox, Cleveland. Mrs. Cox has proved an efficient secretary and was reelected.

The two day's convention which opened Wednesday afternoon comes to a close tonight when competitive drills will be held between the teams representing Lakeview Assembly, No. 1220 of Cleveland and Lorain Assembly No. 14, Lorain. The meeting starts at 7 sharp with each team occupying about an hour. Fifteen are in each team. Should Cleveland win they hold possession of the beautiful banner of the State Association wo nwice before by Cleveland. Lorain has won it once. Lorain has won national banners at Detroit and Pittsburgh. There is considerable rivalry between the Cleveland and Lorain teams and competition tonight is expected to be keen. The public is invited to witness the drills.

At the morning session several splendid talks were made in addition to the transaction of routine business of the convention. Bert L. Gray of Cleveland, northern Ohio organizer and National Auditor spoke on "How Are Reserve Funds Obtained and What Are the Nse of Such Fund?" George Van Steenbergh of Cleveland, manager of th eCleveland team and Past State President had for his topic, "How Shall Presidents Conduct Meetings That Make For Success?" Carl Brown, of Hamilton, spoke on "How Shall We Assimilate Our New Members?" A. C. Mack, District Manager of Hamilton, used for his subject, "How to Secure Prospects, Develop Them, Write Their Application." National President George A. Scott of Waverly, N. Y. reviewed each topic.

This afternoon starting at 1:30 the regular business of the convention was entirely disposed of with all delegates being called upon to give personal experiences.

At three o'clock the convention adjourned an auto ride about the city suburbs being planned for this hour. Automobiles were furnished by Portsmouth Automobile Club.

Yesterday's Sessions

Following the opening exercises Wednesday afternoon the state officers were seated by the Lakeview Assembly, No. 1220, drill team, the meeting being continued in open session for the pleasure of visitors and local members. The work of the drill team brought them many compliments. The official opening of the convention followed, the remainder of the time before adjournment was taken for a picture being given over to talks by National President George A. Scott and State Secretary Mrs. Nellie Cox of Cleveland. Mr. Scott took for his subject, "Insurance Salesmanship" while Mrs. Cox spoke on "Efficient Secretaryship." In introducing Manager Adam Frick of the Chamber of Commerce who spoke on "Organization" during the opening exercises, Mrs. Rosa Ward, District Manager presiding as master of ceremonies recalled how a letter written by Mr. Frick last year and carried by her to the convention at Youngstown had a big part in bringing this year's meeting to Portsmouth. The letter was an invitation to the State Association to hold its 1924 meeting in the Peerless City.

Enjoy Banquet

At seven o'clock the delegates and visitors with a number of local members gathered in the convention room to enjoy a well prepared chicken banquet served under the direction of Francis Mack. Red carnations were the favors.

A short program of readings and music arranged to follow the banquet was called off when the guests expressed a desire to spend the time in dancing. The tables were quickly cleared away and carpet rolled back and close to 50 couples enjoyed dancing till midnight with Journey's entertainers furnishing the music.

Here Are Officers

Officers of Portsmouth Assembly are:

President—Mrs. Catherine Weaver.
Past President—Mrs. Mary Clark.
Vice-President—Mrs. Fannie Starr.
Secretary—Mrs. Addie Jones.
Treasurer—Mrs. Clara Mathews.
Conductor—Mrs. Margaret Cline.
Chaplain—Mrs. Pearl Beaumont.
Guard—Mrs. Ollie Woods.
Sentinel—C. P. Ward.
Trustees—Lola Henson, C. P. Ward, E. E. Rickey.
Local Deputy—Mrs. Addie Jones.

Just Three Years Ago

The Portsmouth Assembly was organized three years ago this month and now boasts of a membership of about 200. District Manager Mrs. Rosa Ward has been a hard worker in the local organization and since March 1 has written up 58 members. She has played an important part in the organizing of an Assembly at Ashland.

It was three years ago the 17 of this month that the Portsmouth Assembly held their first big banquet at the Washington hotel to celebrate the reorganizing of the local Assembly. Miss Ella Chilcoat, district manager, now of New Philadelphia, and Miss Leona Eisel, office manager, Columbus, spent some time here re-establishing Portsmouth Assembly. Both are in attendance at the convention and feel justly proud of the progress the Portsmouth organization has made.

There are 12 Assemblies affiliated with the State Association and about 30 smaller Assemblies in the state not members of the State organization. Each Assembly has a membership from 50 to 200 men and women.

Among the visitors registered: Mrs. Myrtle Jones, Mrs. Walter Jones, Mrs. Robert Rhaffman, Robert Rhaffman, John Dalzell, Miss Eleanor Gongers, Mrs. May Wise, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Brilliant, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brown, Mrs. C. M. Witter, Mrs Dollie Wolverton of Hamilton; Irene Matthews, Lina Pabe, Lillian Ginter, Hazel Watts, Helen Sloat, Gertrude Peterson, Enis Hinske, Phyliss Walls, Art Peterson, Alex Campbell, Edith Prange, Mary Snyder, Mrs Margaret Hinske, Cleveland; Mrs. D. V. McClusky, Harrisburgh, Pa.; Mrs. R. L. Ruhlman, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Tollshaw, of Youngstown; William Evans, Harvey Kaiser, George Mars, Mrs Fred Billings, Mrs. Harry Wilson, Mrs. Henry Mullen, Mrs. Clyde Lisle, Miss Imogene Lisle, Mrs. Clara Smith, Mrs. August Rehmd, Mrs. Ethel Daughty, Mrs. Margaret McCarty, Mrs. Harry Kerr, Mrs. Harry Stephen, Mrs. Fred Nuberton and Mrs. Henrietta Sarget of Lorain.

BIG DEAL IS CLOSED IN NEW BOSTON

The Bierley property located on Gallia and Park avennues, in New Boston, the corner being considered one of the best in that village, was sold today by the Bierley heirs to Paul C. Copelan, head of the Copelan Realty company.

The deal includes the building occupied by The McGinniss Drug Company, Copelan's department store, three flats on the second floor, a flat in the rear and a two-story business block occupied by Mrs. Sarah Conley, facing Park avenue. The deal was handled by the Bierley Realty company and the consideration was $20,000.

Mrs. R. L. Ruhlman of Youngstown, a visitor to the convention, sustained a sprained ankle, when she stepped in a small sidewalk gutter Wednesday.

National President George A. Scott is minus one good hat. Some one exchanged an old small sized hat for his perfectly brand new $12.50 topper last night.

Carl Brown of Hamilton, was mourning the loss of a good folding camera, which was found by one of the delegates from Lorain and returned to the owner.

John B. Jones Sells Home

Through a deal closed today, George L. Law, owner of the Eastland and Temple theatres, purchased the John B. Jones eight room brick dwelling at 828 Second street for a price said to be over $12,000. Mr. Law will place his cottage home at 837 Second street on the market. He will not occupy his new purchase for about six weeks, due to repairs being made to the property.

Mr. Vetter Buys Property

A. Kauffman of the Home store, New Boston, sold his property on Chillicothe street, between Second and Third to John Vetter, Chillicothe street tailor, who purchased the property for future use. Kauffman purchased the property, a frame structure from Henry Faivre some months ago. The buildings are occupied by the Modern Way Bakery and Ratcliff barber shop.

Negotiations were handled by the Bierley Really Company.

Arguments of Both Sides Heard In Beer Controversy

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Modification of the Prohibition laws was vigorously opposed today by a delegation headed by Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League who appeared before the house judiciary committee. The committee has under consideration a number of bills which would permit 2.75 per cent beer.

Selby League to Have 4 Teams

Four fast teams are expected to make up a Selby factory baseball league planned for this year when a meeting was held at the factory Wednesday afternoon at the call of Carl Hauck, president of the 1923 League. At the meeting yesterday Albert Rollins was elected president; Marion Prosch, vice president, and Fred Bruce secretary-treasurer. Selco park was selected as the playing field with games twice each week. The new president is to select four captains tonight and tomorrow a meeting will be held with the captains to arrange the makeup of the four teams and the schedule.

Preliminary plans call for the season to open about May 23. Each captain is to select his players from the factory and with only four teams in the league each team should be fast and provide a close race through the season.

Steps Off Curb; Is Hit By Auto

Mark Allen, 22, of 2220 Grandview avenue, sustained an injured right ankle about seven o'clock Wednesday evening when run down by an automobile at Vinton and Grandview avenue. As he stepped from the curb to cross the street a machine driven by a woman cut the corner and before Allen could step back onto the sidewalk the auto caught his right foot and caused him to be thrown to the curb. He was able to return to his work in the shipping department at the Excelsior shoe factory this morning.

Two New Ones In Ruhlman Addition

Young and Young, a local realty company, has had work started on two new six room houses to be erected in the Ruhlman Addition, Scioto Trail, and Boulevard.

One Bid Submitted

Bids were opened today by the city for 12,000 feet of water pipe, 20,000 pounds of lead and 2,000 pounds of okum. The Standard Supply Company submitted the only bid, which will be canvassed by the Board of Control.

Big Dance Friday

The advance sale of tickets for the dance which will be given in Bateman's hall Friday night under the auspices of the All Star baseball club indicates that the affair will be a big success. The committee in charge of the hop is composed of Messrs. Teddy Weber, Frank Keyser, Joe Barber and Ab. Rollins and they are being assisted by every member of the team in carrying out the arrangements of the program.

The proceeds from the dance will be applied to the purchase of new uniforms for the team, which is one of the strongest diamond aggregations that has ever represented the Peerless and the boys are deserving of liberal patronage in way of encouragement.

Attorney Says an Attempt was Made "To Smear" Walsh as Well as Wheeler

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—The activities of Blair Coan, the Republican national committee investigator, who ent to Montana to inquire into the records of Senator Walsh of the oil committee and Senator Wheeler of the Daugherty committee were further described today in the senate Daugherty investigation. A. A. Grorud, a Helena attorney, testified he had talked with Coan in Montana in April.

"Coan came to me and said he wanted something to smear Senator Walsh with," Mr. Grorud said. "He asked mo for affidavits. He said they had Wheeler where they wanted him and now they would get something on Walsh. I told Coan that I knew something about the Campbell case (on which Senator Wheeler's indictment was based) and that there was nothing they could convict Wheeler about in that. Coan said that was right, but that they would have the indictment to hold over Wheeler anyhow. Slattery, the United States District Attorney, had not wished to bring the case before a grand jury even, Coan went on, but the department of justice had a charge against Slattery because he had been mixed up in some liquor prosecutions, and that made Slattery go through, anyway."

The committee then returned to its inquiry into the affairs of Howard Manington, M. P. Kraffmiller, former associate of Manington in Washington produced a letter sent him February 26, 1922, by the latter from Columbus, refusing to give back part of the money paid by Kraffmiller to Manington as fees for "legal services."

The witness said that Fred A. Caskey, also associated with Manington had told him Will A. Orr, of New York, also was trying to get back money from Manington, and that Orr threatened to shoot up Jess Smith and Manington if he didn't pay it back.

Paul Howland, attorney for H. M. Daugherty asked Kraffmiller if the payments "you made to Manington were paid as 'bribes'."

"Wasn't this money paid by your clients because they knew Manington was close to the attorney general," asked Chairman Brookhart.

"Well, we believed he had influence with the attorney general."

COLUMBUS, O., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Howard P. Manington, Columbus attorney, today said: "I can't be denying all these single insinuations that come up during the Daugherty committee probe" and declared his intention of keeping quiet until the work of the senate committee is completed.

Allen Chapel Revival Drawing Big Crowds

Despite other attractions, every seat in the auditorium of Allen Chapel church is being filled each night by men and women eager to hear the evangelistic messages of Rev. Nathaniel H. Jeltz, who is being ably assisted in making the special services a success by his brother, Rev. J. E. Jeltz, gospel singer. The subject for tonights service will be "The Bridge of Faith." Last night the evangelist chose for his sermon subject "The Vision of the New Life." To date 25 have united with Allen Chapel and Findlay Street M. E. churches, under whose auspices the revival is being held.

Saturday night a special service will be held, plans for this meeting to be announced tomorrow. Sunday afternoon another mass meeting will be held for men and women.

To the Star

Twinkle, twinkle, little Star,
At last we know just what you are,
Tearing 'round the streets so fast,
Everyone's Car is here at last;
Small in upkeep, small in price,
Yet big in value, and oh, so nice;
Not a single car that is made today,
Can pass the Star in any way;
The highest hill it will take on high.
And on the level it will nearly fly;
Every garage would close today
On the repair and upkeep you have to pay;
Give enough thanks, we really can't,
To the Star builder—W. C. Durant,
For building a car for one and all,
With a value that is big and a price that is small;
She is ready for demonstration, believe me.

Marilyn Jean Milhuff

Marilyn Jean, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald H. Milhuff, was born in Sciotoville, November 20, 1923, and departed this life, May 2, 1924, aged 5 months, 12 days.

Little Marilyn Jean was a great sufferer, but bore it patiently. She was bright and winsome and in the few brief months of her earthly career she won the hearts of those about her and today they feel deeply the burden of sorrow caused by her going away. She just came to remain for a short while. Like the Morning Glory, her life closed before the sun became too hot. But she did not take her departure before she had left a lasting, loving impression upon those who had gently cared for and fondled her from the day of her advent into the home. She had completely woven around herself the heartstrings of father, mother, grandfather and grandmother. Today they sit in a wilderness of solicitude although surrounded by friends.

God's ways are past finding out. Why she was permitted to be only a bud on earth to bloom in heaven, we do not know. It is as natural to die as to be born, and to the little infant perhaps one is as painful as the other. The smallest children are nearest to God as the smallest planets are nearest the sun. The lost world has no children in it. Heaven has them all. Little Marilyn now adorns immortal bowers in the land of eternal day and she will constantly serve as a magnet to draw her loved ones that way.—Contributed.

OBITUARY

Bobby Lee Taylor

Bobby Lee Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Taylor was born April 16, 1924, and died yesterday afternoon at the home, 3516 Gallia street, New Boston.

The body was taken to Ashland today for burial.

Preston Mustard

Preston Mustard, prominent Barden township farmer, died at his home on Barden Creek, three miles north of Barden village, yesterday. He was about 70 years old and a lifelong resident of that vicinity. He had been in failing health for several years and his death was due to complications.

Mr. Mustard was a splendid citizen and a staunch Democrat. He is survived by a widow and three brothers. Burial in Mustard cemetery Thursday.

Melvin Thomas Mead

Funeral and burial services were held this afternoon for Melvin Thomas Mead, seven week's old son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Mead of Castle Hill, Sciotoville, who died Wednesday morning about nine o'clock. The body was taken to Sunshine, Ky., back of Fullerton for burial.

Cain Monroe Blackburn

C. M. "Roe" Blackburn, prominent Barden township farmer, answered the final summons at his home at Mt. Joy shortly before Wednesday midnight. Death was due to complications and followed a short illness.

Cain Monroe Blackburn was a native of Mt. Joy where he was born on March 21, 1872, consequently he had passed his fifty-second milestone in life's journey. He was the son of the late Thomas and Caroline Scott Blackburn, early settlers of the Mt. Joy vicinity, moving there from Allegheny county, Penn., in 1858.

Mr. Blackburn united with the Mt. Joy Christian church thirty-six years ago, never falling by the wayside. He was superintendent of the Sunday School there for many years and always took an active interest in church affairs. He taught school for several years but later engaged in the lumber business and farming in which he was successful.

He was a member of the Barden Grange and Scioto County Farm Bureau and has held various township offices, including president of the township school board, and was always found standing for good schools.

He is survived by his widow, Ruby Hackworth-Blackburn, and the following children: sons, Harold, Leonard, Charles, Leo and Wayne, and one daughter, Helen, all at home, besides, one brother, W. R. Blackburn, of Detroit, Mich., and two sisters, Mrs. W. G. Unger and Mrs. C. J. Chandler, both of Portsmouth.

Funeral services will be conducted by Rev. Gerald Culberson, pastor of the First Christian church, this city, at the Mt. Joy Christian church at 2 p. m., Friday. Burial in the family lot in cemetery nearby.

Wahrheit Funeral

John P. Wahrheit, aged resident of Scioto county and the dean of local newspapermen, will be laid to rest in Greenlawn cemetery, after funeral services at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. Last rites will be conducted by Rev. G. M. Howerton at the home of Mr. Wahrheit's daughter, Mrs. Adam Pfau, 1930 Hutchins street.

Members of Scioto Lodge I. O. O. F., plan to attend in a body. Arrangements to this effect will be made at a special meeting tonight.

Walter Martin

A son, Walter, Jr., born at about 6 o'clock last night to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Martin of 3710 Gallia street, New Boston, died shortly after birth. The child was buried this afternoon in Greenlawn cemetery.

Review of Iron Trade

CLEVELAND, OHIO, May 8.—The Iron Trade Review today says:

So swift and extensive has been the recent curtailment of iron and steel production that indications now point to a better balanced condition of the market. Price variations have narrowed and in several quarters sentiment is beginning to brighten again after the recent period of distrust. New buying has not improved and remains comparatively light. Yet consumption appears to be keeping to very comfortable proportions and producers continue to count upon the strong basic conditions to restore activity in due season.

Not since the severe depression of 1921 have so many blast furnaces gone out of production in so short a period as during April. In that month the total net loss was 35 stacks. In March, 1921, when production was demoralized, it was 52 stacks. Since May 1st, the number of furnaces blown out has been further increased and other furnace and steelworks suspensions are about to follow.

Pig iron production in April did not fall as far as the loss in active furnaces indicates since many of these changes came in the latter part of the month. The total was 3,226,491 tons compared with 3,465,389 tons in March. Average daily output fell from 111,787 tons to 107,546 tons or 3.8 per cent. Furnaces in blast at the end of April numbered 234.

Apart from 8,000 cars, which it is reported the Baltimore & Ohio may buy soon, there is no life in the railroad equipment market. Car orders in April total 10,253, bringing the awards of the first four months to 72,955, compared with 76,599 for the corresponding period last year. Two independent producers, one at Chicago and the other in the east, divided the 80,000 to 100,000 tons of steel for the Chesapeake & Ohio cars. The American Steel Foundries took 32,000 cast steel wheels for the order.

Evidence of a less erratic condition of prices is supplied this week by the figure of $41.58 of Iron Trade Review composite of fourteen leading iron and steel products. Last week the composite was $41.72.

Latest reports of automobile production in Detroit and Michigan territory place the total around 11,500 cars daily excluding trucks.

European iron and steel markets continue to improve though prices still are being readjusted to fluctuations of exchange. Iron and steel production in France in March reached the high mark since the war.

Philippines Promised Greater Autonomy

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—A promise of greater autonomy at once and independence in twenty years is held out to the Philippines in a bill favorably reported to the house by its insular affairs committee. Although no place has yet been assigned to it on the legislative program, friends of the measure are expected to press for a vote on it before congress adjourns.

The bill introduced by Representative Fairfield, Republican, Indiana, with a provision for an independents' plebiscite in the islands at the end of thirty years, was amended by the committee late yesterday to eliminate the plebiscite requirement and provide for automatic recognition of the Philippines as an independent nation and withdrawal of American troops at the expiration of twenty years.

A "commonwealth of the Philipines" meanwhile would be set up after the drafting of a constitution by a constitutional convention and its acceptance by the qualified electors of the Philippines and during the twenty years of remaining allegiance to the United States, its acts would be subject to review only by the president.

Drunks Must Give Name of Bootlegger

NEWARK, O., May 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Drunks arrested in Newark, will have the option of paying a $500 fine or serving it out in jail, or giving the court the name of the bootlegger who sold the liquor. Judge Wayne Collier of the Municipal Court announced this morning. His first test of the plan resulted in an affidavit being filed by the prisoner and his promising to testify.

Rev. Phelps To Be Installed At Second Church Tonight; Public Invited

Portsmouth Presbytery will conduct the service tonight at Second Presbyterian church that will mark the installation of Rev. William H. Phelps as pastor of that church. Dr. Phelps recently came to Second church from Battle Creek, Mich., and although he has been here only a week he has made a splendid impression on the membership of Second church and Portsmouth citizens who have had the pleasure of meeting him in this short time.

Rev. J. C. White of Jackson, moderator of the Presbytery, will preside and propound the constitutional questions.

Rev. George N. Luccock, pastor of the Westminter Presbyterian Church of Wooster, and a preacher of national reputation, will be the preacher, and will deliver the Installation sermon. Rev. Dr. Luccock is no stranger to Portsmouth. He was a visitor here last fall, attending the meeting of Synod, and many friends will welcome him tonight.

Rev. Hugh Ivan Evans, former pastor of Second church, now of Dayton, will deliver the charge to the people.

Rev. William H. Gleiser, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will deliver the charge to the pastor.

Rev. G. Monroe Howerton, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, will offer the installation prayer.

Rev. T. M. Patterson of Ripley, a former member of Second church, will have a part in the service.

Several other ministers from various churches in the Presbytery are expected for the event.

Special music will be featured in the program, under the direction of Prof. Elmer Ende, organist and choir-master.

An invitation is extended to the public, and especially to the Presbyterians of Portsmouth, to be present at the service.

Suicide Won't Mend Shattered Dreams, Says Girl Model

CHICAGO.—If yo uhave wondered whether a person who tried to commit suicide and failed was sorry he lived, listen to Constance McDermott, statuesque model.

She fell in love with the studio Adonis—a chap with a face like the collar ads—considered her love hopeless, slipped a robe about her nudeness, stepped from the art class into her dressing room and drank poison. Prompt aid saved her, and now she says:

"Girls, don't try suicide.

"Ttempts at self-destruction never has won the love you may crave. Besides, poison leaves a terrible dark-brown taste.

"As for Gail Erwin, I'll win him yet.

"This poison is all past and I've forgotten about it. I'm going to stay right here and go ahead with my work. Of course, I'm glad I'm alive. You needn't consider my affair with Gail broken up, either. Hes mine.

The studio Adonis had two girls—Connie and the one to whom he was engaged. He spent four evenings a week with Connie and three with his fiancee. He told Connie frankly he intended to marry the other girl. Yet she kept repeating, "I'll stick."

"Connie was a nice enough girl. The trouble was she didn't play the game right. After the attempted suicide, you know, there isn't any chance of our being married. She knew I didn't love her and yet when I was out of town she flooded me with letters and telegrams of love.

"A girl cannot make any progress that way."

Salesman Accused of Fleecing Local Patrons

Posing as a salesman for the Gold Stripe Hose Company, a man giving the name of Harry Cooman escaped with considerable money taken from persons to whom he sold hose. Cooman is said to have taken orders for the hose under false pretenses and in return demanded a deposit of at least fifty cents on each pair. He sold the hose at a reduced priced and showed to many of his customers a letter of recommendation, which he forged, bearing the name of Mrs. John A. Grimes of Second street.

It is thought that Cooman obtained a considerable sum of money in this way. It was not until recently that his customers, nat receiving their orders, called Mrs. Grimes and asked if she knew of the man.

The police have been notified and are on the lookout for Coonan.

Court House

Left Estate To Widow

Under the terms of the will of the late George H. Hill, prominent West Side farmer and former county Commissioner, deceased, admitted to probate Thursday, he left his entire estate to his widow, Francis Elizabeth Hill.

Mr. Hill, who died April 24 last, at his home on the Hayman farm, Galena pike, executed the will a few days before his death.

Contesting Malone Will

George W. Malone and seventeen others are contesting the will of the late Frederick A. Malone, deceased, in a suit filed Thursday in Common Pleas court, against Rosa Hughes and Ella Malone, devisees and legatees under the will, Fred Hughes, executor, and nine other defendants.

Malone, well known West Side man, died February 25, 1924, and under his will executed June 13, 1922, which was admitted to probate on April 8, he left the bulk of his estate to Rosa Hughes and Ella Malone, and cutting off the plaintiffs, who are now seeking to set the will aside on the grounds of undue influence and mental incapacity.

Plaintiffs in their petition filed through Attorneys Mark Crawford and Walter L. Dickey allege that for some years prior to and at the time the will was executed, Malone was not of sound mind and memory, by reason of protracted excessive drinking and continued use of morphine and was pudsuaded and coerced into signing the purported will by the undue influence, it is charged, of the defendants, Rosa Hughes, Ella Malone and Fred Hughes.

Hodge Seeks Divorce

Alleging that she has abandoned him five times since their marriage in April, 1917, in Huntington, and declaring that she neglected him, their children and home for the association of one Clyde Evans, John Hodge, 1023 Chillicothe street, seeks divorce and custody of their two minor children, in an action instituted Thursday in Common Pleas court, against Carrie Hodge, now living in this city.

Plaintiff in his petition filed through Attorney T. C. Beatty alleged that the defendant grew so fond of Evans that she frequently entertained him at their home, cooking his meals while plaintiff was away at work, and representing to her landlady that Evans was her cousin. He further alleges that the defendant was in the habit of becoming intoxicated.

Echo of Auto Collision

Echo of a collision between automobiles which occurred on Gallia pike, three miles east of Portsmouth on December 16, 1923, came Thursday in Common Pleas court, when Luella Cunningham instituted an action, suing through Attorneys Miller and Searl, demanding $500 damages from Paul Ruppel for damages she alleges to has sustained to her Jewett sedan, in the way of broken parts and depreciation. Plaintiff charges that the collision was caused by the negligent and careless manner on the part of defendant in handling his Ford automobile.

Mrs. Prather Seeks Divorce, Etc.

Ethel Prather, 824 Prospect street, charges neglect and cruelty in her suit for divorce and allmony with custody of their two minor children, Bryson, 9 years old, and Velma, four years old, instituted Thursday in Common Pleas court, against Roy Prather, same address, whom she married in August, 1913.

Plaintiff in her petition filed through Attorneys Blair and Blair, says that Prather has called her vile and indecent names, wrongfully and falsely accused her of being unchaste, has frequently told her that he did not care for her, that he had the "devil" in him and would go and make "dates" with such women as he pleased, and that she could get out and leave if she did not like it, besides, she claims, he threatened to take the children from her if she undertook to do anything to him for his conduct.

Furthermore, plaintiff declares, that by reason of Prather's conduct towards her she has become sick and nervous and says she cannot longer endure to live under such treatment and she secured a temporary injunction preventing the defendant from further annoying or molesting her in any manner and restraining him from interfering with her in the custody of her children, and tying up his money in bank.

Fine Imposed

Paul Ruppel, manager of the Columbus Cut Rate meat market, 847 Gallia street, was found guilty of selling "adulterated meat at a hearing in Municipal court Thursday and Judge Sprague imposed a fine of $25 and costs against him. The complaint was filed by Edwin James, state food inspector, and charged the sale of humburger containing added sulphites.

Denby Revisits Washington

When last Edwin B. Denby was photographed in Washington it was in the role of secretary of the navy resigning in the midst of oil lease charges. Here he reappears as Major Edwin B. Denby, U. S. Marines, visiting the capitol to inspect the new marine tank, designed and invented by Walter Christie.

W. A. Brush Wins Suit; Injunction Permanent

By agreement of both sides, Judge Thomas in Common Pleas court Thursday overruled a motion to dissolve the temporary restraining order in the suit of William A. Brush, Haverhill farmer, against Green township trustees, and entered an order making the injunction perpetual.

The suit was brought to settle a dispute over a road ditch constructed by the Trustees to convey water from the ditch into a ravine passing through plaintiff's lands. Under the new arrangement the water passed through Mr. Brush's lands, to which he objected, and dammed up the ditch and the trustees broke the dam, whereas Brush dammed it again, for which he was arrested and a fine assessed against him by a Green township magistrate for obstructing the course of a stream. Brush refused to pay the fine and sought relief by legal action in Common Pleas court, which he instituted through Attorneys Irish and Riley, Ironton. Prosecutor S. A. Skelton appeared for the trustees.

LITTLE LADY LYDBROOK

FROM the very first I felt that, owing to my passionate love for Lola, I was treading upon very thin ice.

As the cat's paw of her father I was being drawn into such subtle devilish schemes that I felt to draw back must only bring upon my head the vengeance, through fear, of a man who was so entirely unscrupulous and so elusive that the police could never trace him.

Why a few weeks later I had been sent to Biarritz with Vincent was an enigma I failed to solve. At any rate, at Rayne's suggestion, we had gone there and had stayed under assumed names at the Hotel du Palais, that handsome place standing high upon the rocks with such charming views of the rocky headland of St. Martin and the dozen gray-green islets.

"Well, Hargreave!" exclaimed Rayne. "I hope you had a nice time at Biarritz, eh? Well, I want you to go on a further little holiday down to Eastbourne. Drive the Rolls down to the Grand Hotel there and stay as a gentleman of leisure."

"I'm always that nowadays," I laughed.

"Stay there under the name of George Cottingham," he went on, "and spend rather freely, so as to give yourself a good appearance. You understand?"

"No, I don't understand," I said. "At least, I don't understand what game is to be played."

"You needn't, George," was his short reply. "You are paid not to understand, and to keep your mouth shut. So please recollect that. Now at the hotel," he went on, "there is staying Lady Lydbrook, wife of the great Sheffield ironmaster. I want you to scrape up acquaintance with her."

"Why?" I asked.

"For reasons best known to myself," he snapped. "It's nice weather just now, and you ought to enjoy yourself at Eastbourne. It's a smart place for an English resort, and there's lots going on there. They will think you such a nice sociable young man. Besides, you will spend money and make pretense of being rich. And let me give you a valuable tip. On the first evening you arrive at the hotel call the valet, give him a pound note and tell him to go out and buy a pound bottle of eau-de-Cologne to put in your bath. There's nothing that gets round a hotel so quickly as wanton extravagance like that. The guests hear of it through the servants, and everyone is impressed by your wealth."

Two days later I arrived at the smart south coast hotel. Though not the season, Eastbourne was filled by quite a fashionable crowd. The Grand, situated at the far end of the town towards Beachy Head, is the resort of wealthy Londoners. I arrived alone in the showy Rolls just before luncheon, when many of the visitors were seated in the cane chairs outside or on the glass-covered veranda.

I noticed, too, that the Rolls was well scrutinized, as well as myself. Under my assumed name, I took one of the most expensive rooms, and later, in the big dining room, the waiter pointed out to me Lady Lydbrook, a young, blue-eyed, fluffy-haired little lady who, exquisitely dressed, as seated in a corner with another young woman about her own age.

Her companion was dark and exceedingly well dressed. I learned from the waiter that Sir Owen Lydbrook was not with his wife, and that the name of her companion was Miss Elsie Wallis.

"I fancy she's on the stage, sir," the man added confidently. "Only I don't know her stage name. They've been 'ere nearly a month. Sir Owen is in Paris, I think. They say 'e's a lot older than 'er."

On the evening of my arrival there happened to be a dance in the hotel, and watching, I saw Lady Lydbrook enter the ballroom. She looked very charming in a dance frock of bright orange, with a wreath of silver leaves in her hair. Her gown was certainly the most chic of any in the room, and she wore a beautiful rope of pearls.

Presently I summoned courage, and bowing, invited her to dance with me. She smiled with dignity and accepted. Hence we were soon acquaintances, for she danced beautifully, and I am told that I dance fairly well. After the fox-trot we sat down and chatted. I told her that I had only arrived that day.

"I saw you," she said. 'What a topping car you have! Ours is a Rolls, but an old pattern. I'm always pressing my husband to get rid of it and buy a new model. But he won't. Business men are all the same. They tot up figures and weigh the cost of everything," and she laughed lightly, showing a set of pearly teeth. "They weigh up everything one eats and wears. I hope you're not a business man?"

"No. I'm not," I replied with a smile. "If I were I might be a bit richer than I am."

"Money! Bah!" she exclaimed as she waved the big ostrich feather that served her as a fan. "It's all very well in its way, but some men get stifled with their money-bags, just as Owen is. Their wealth is so great that its very heaviness presses out all their good qualities and only leaves avarice behind."

"But to have great wealth at one's command must be a source of great joy. Look how much good one could do!" I said philosophically.

"Good! Yes," she laughed. "The rich man can be philanthropic—if he is not a business man, Mr. Cottingham. The latter—if he tries to do good to his fellow creatures—is dubbed a fool in his business circles and invariably comes to grief. At least that is what Owen tells me. He's double my age, and he ought to know," added the charming little woman.

I admitted that there was much truth in what she had said. Indeed, we had already grown to be such good friends that, at her invitation, the night being clear and moonlit, we strolled out of the hotel and along the promenade, half-way to the pier, and back.

Her companion, Miss Wallis, I had seen in the ballroom dancing with an elderly man who had "the city" stamped all over him. We chatted upon many subjects as we strolled in the balmy moonlit night.

"I expect my husband back in a day or two. He has been in Warsaw upon some financial business for the Government. When we leave here we go to Trouville for a week or so, and in the autumn I believe we go to America. My husband goes over each year."

Then I learned from her that they had a town house in Curzon Street, a country place in Berkshire, and a villa at Cannes. They had it appeared, only recently been married.

"We generally manage to get to Cannes each winter for a month or two. I love the Riviera," she said. "Do you know it?"

"Yes," I replied. "I've been there once or twice."

"The Villa Jaumont is out on the road to Nice, on the left. Perhaps if you happen to be there this winter you will call. I shall be most delighted to see you."

When presently we were back in the hotel and I had gone to my room, I realized that I had made rather good progress. I had ingratiated myself with her, and she had grown very confidential, inasmuch as I was already able to judge that she rather despised her elderly and parsimonious husband, and that she preferred to lead her own untrammelled life.

A few days later I received a scribbled note signed "Rudolph" to say that a friend of his, an Italian named Giulio Ansaldi, was arriving at the hotel and would meet me in strictest secrecy. I was to leave my bedroom door unlocked at midnight, when he would enter unannounced. Enclosed was half of one of Duperre's visiting cards torn across in a jagged manner.

"Your visitor will present to you the missing half of the enclosed card as credential," he wrote. "If the two pieces fit, then trust him implicitly and act according to his instructions which he will convey from me."

Little Lady Lydbrook had now become my constant companion. Her friend, Elsie Wallis, had apparently become on friendly terms with a tall, slim, dark-haired young man who often took her out in his car, while on several occasions Lady Lydbrook had accepted my invitation for an afternoon run and tea somewhere. The one fact that I did not like was that a quiet, middle-aged man seemed always to be watching our movements, for whether we chatted together in the lounge, went out motoring, walking on the promenade, or dancing, he always appeared somewhere in the vicinity. But on the day I received Rayne's note he had paid his bill and left the hotel, a fact by which my mind was much relieved.

That day I motored my pretty little friend over to Brighton, where we lunched at the Metropole and arrived back for tea. Her husband, she said, had that morning telegraphed to her from Hamburg regretting that he could not rejoin her at present as he was on his way to Italy.

"I suppose all our plans are upset again!" she remarked with a pretty pout, as she sat at my side while we went carefully through the old-world town of Lewes. She had become just a little inquisitive about myself. It seemed that she enjoyed her dances with me. Indeed, she admitted it, but I could discern that she was a good deal puzzled as to my means of livelihood. I had to be very circumspect, yet for the life of me I could not imagine why I had been ordered to carry on what was, after all, a mild flirtation with a very pretty young married lady.

Late in the evening after our return from Brighton, I took a long stroll alone along the lower promenade, close to the beach, which at night is very ill-lit, being below the level of the well-illuminated roadway. I suppose I had walked for quite a couple of miles when, on my return, I discerned in front of me two figures, a man and a woman. A ray of light from the roadway above shone on them as they passed, and I noticed that while the woman wore an ordinary dark cloth coat, the man was in tweeds and a golf cap.

An altercation had arisen between them.

"All right," he cried. "You won't live here very much longer—I'll see to that! You've tried to do me down, and very nearly succeeded. And now you refuse to give me even a fiver!"

Those words aroused my curiosity. I held back; for my feet fell noiselessly because of my rubber heels. I strained my ears to catch their further conversation.

"I've never refused you, Arthur!" replied the woman's voice.

I held my breath. The voice was Lady Lydbrook's. I could recognize it anywhere!

"I don't intend now that you'll get off lightly. You'll have to pay me not a fiver but fifty pounds tonight. So go back to the hotel and bring me out a cheque. I'll wait at the Wish Tower. But mind it isn't a dud one. If it is, then, by gad! I'll tell them right away. And won't the fur fly then, eh?"

Suddenly they halted. I held back at once. They conversed in lower tones—intense words that I could not catch. But it seemed to me that the frail little woman who was so often my companion was cowed and terrified. Why? What did she fear?

She left him, while he drew back into the shadow. I waited also in the shadow for nearly ten minutes, then I passed on, ascended some steps and re-entered the hotel. In the lounge I sank into a seat in a hidden corner and lit a cigarette. Presently I heard the swish of a woman's skirt behind me, and rising, peered out. It was Lady Lydbrook on her way out. She was carrying the cheque to the mysterious stranger!

Next morning she appeared bright and radiant at breakfast—which, of course, she took with her rather retiring friend Elsie Wallis—and I smiled across at her. She was, after all, a bright up-to-date little married woman possessed of great wealth and influence, her whole life being devoted to self-enjoyment at the expense of her elderly and despised husband. She was a typical girl of society who had married an old man for his money and afterwards sought younger male society. We have them today in hundreds on every side.

After breakfast we went together along the seafront where the band was playing. The weather was glorious and Eastbourne looked at its best.

I now regarded her as a mystery after what I had witnessed on the previous night.

"I'm horribly bored here!" she declared to me, as in her white summer gown she strolled by my side towards the town. "Owen is not coming, so I think I shall soon get away somewhere."

"What about your friend Elsie?" I asked, wondering whether her decision had any connection with the unwelcome arrival of that mysterious young man in tweeds.

"Oh, she's going back to London today—so I shall be horribly lonely," she replied.

That night I went to my room at about ten minutes before midnight, and waited for the appearance of my secret visitor.

Just as midnight struck the handle of the door slowly turned and a well-dressed, dark-mustached man of about thirty-five entered silently and bowed.

"Mr. Hargreave?" he asked with a foreign accent. "Or is it Cottingham?"

"Which you please," I replied in a low voice, laughing.

"I have this to hand to you," he said as he produced the portion of the visiting card which I found fitted exactly to that which I had received from Rayne.

"Well?" I asked, inviting him to a chair and afterwards turning the key in the door. "What message have you for me?" Then I noticed for the first time that he bore in his hand a small brown leather attache-case.

"I know you well by name, Mr. Hargreave," he said. "You are one of us, I know. Therefore The Golden Face sends you a message."

"Have you seen him?" I asked.

"No," was his reply. "Though we have been in association for several years, I always receive messages through Vincent Duperre."

"Duperre saw me in London yesterday, gave me that piece of card, and told me to come here and explain matters," the Italian went on in a low voice. "You see this case. I am to hand it to you," and as he took it, he touched the bottom, which I saw was hinged and fell inwards in two pieces, both of which sprang back again into their places by means of strong springs. My small collar-box stood upon the dressing-table.

"You see how it works," he said, and placing the attache-case over the collar-box, he snatched it up and the collar-box had disappeared inside! It was an old invention of thieves and possessed no originality. I wondered that Rayne's friends employed such a contrivance, which, of course, was useful when it became necessary that valuable objects should disappear.

"Well, and what of it?" I asked, as, opening the case, he took out my collar-box and replaced it upon the table.

"I am told that you are on very friendly terms with Lady Lydbrook. Our friend old Hesketh has been here and watched your progress—a gray-mustached man with a slight limp. I dare say you may have noticed him."

"Yes. I know Sir Owen's wife," I said. "Why?"

"Possibly you don't know that she has in a small dark-green morocco case a rope of pearls worth twenty thousand, as well as some other magnificent jewels. Haven't you seen her wearing her pearls?"

"I have," I said, "but I put them down as artificial ones."

"No—every one of them is real! They were a present to her from her husband on her marriage," said the foreigner, his dark eyes glowing as he spoke. "We want them," he whispered eagerly. "And as you know her, you'll have to get them."

"I shall do no such thing!" I protested quickly. "I may be employed by Mr. Rayne, but I'm not paid to commit a theft."

My visitor looked me very straight in the face with his searching eyes, and after a moment's pause, asked:

"Is that really your decision? Am I to report that to Duperre—that you refuse?"

"If you want to steal the woman's pearls why don't you do it yourself?" I suggested.

"Because I am not her friend. You have called at her room for her, Hesketh has reported. You would not be suspected, being her friend," he added with sly persuasiveness.

"No. Tell them I refuse!" I cried, furious that such a proposition should be put to me.

The foreigner, in whom I now recognized a polished international crook, shrugged his shoulders and elevated his eyebrows. Then he asked:

"Will you not reconsider your decision, Signor Hargreave? I fear this refusal will mean a great deal to you. When The Golden Face becomes hostile he always manages to put those who disobey him into the hands of the police. And I have knowledge that he intends you to act in this case as he directs, or—well, I fear that some unpleasantness will arise for you!"

"What do you threaten?" I demanded angrily. "I don't know who you are—and I don't care! One fact is plain, that you, like myself, are an agent of the man of abnormal brain known as The Golden Face, but I tell you I refuse to become a jewel thief."

"Very well, if that is your irrevocable decision I will return tomorrow and report," he answered in very good English, though he was typically Italian. "But I warn you that mischief is meant if you do not obey. Duperre told me so. Like realized that if I refused I must assuredly be cast into the melting-pot as one who might, in return, give Rayne away. I thought of Lola with whom I was so madly in love, and whom I intended to eventually rescue from the criminal atmosphere in which, though innocent, she was compelled to live.

So, to cut a long story short, I met the mysterious Italian crook next day—and I fell, for I took the master-key and agreed to attempt the theft of Lady Lydbrook's pearls!

I now saw through Rayne's devilish plot. I was to be used still further as his cat's-paw, and he had planned that because of my friendship with the pretty young woman, at his orders I was to steal her property.

I felt myself alone and in a cleft stick. That afternoon, as I sat at tea in the lounge with the woman whose jewels I was ordered to steal, I was torn by a thousand emotions, yet I pretended to be my usual self, and at my invitation she went out for a motor run between tea and dinner.

Though I laughed at my foolishness, I somehow suspected that she now viewed me with distinct misgiving. It now became necessary for me to prospect for the little morocco case in which I knew she kept her pearls. Therefore I at last summoned courage, and one evening, just before half-past seven, while she was dressing for dinner, I knocked and made excuse to ask her if she would go to the theater with me.

"Do come in," she cried, for she was already dressed in a bright sapphire-colored gown which greatly heightened her beauty. As she admitted me, I saw the little jewel-case standing upon a tiny side table near the window. She was not wearing her beautiful rope of pearls, therefore they were, without a doubt, safe in the case.

She thanked me and accepted, so I quickly went downstairs and told the hall porter to telephone for two stalls.

That night, on arrival back to the hotel, it occurred to me that if the little jewel-case had been left where it was my chance had now arrived. I was being forced against my will to become a thief. Rayne, the man who held me in his grip, had driven me to it and had placed the means at my disposal. To refuse would mean arrest and the loss of Lola.

We sat down in the lounge and I called for drinks—she was thirsty and would like a lemon squash, she said. Before the waiter brought them I made leisurely excuse to go to the bureau to see if there were any letters. Instead I rushed up to my own room obtained the "trick" attache-case, and carrying it along to Lady Lydbrook's room, stealthily opened the door with the master-key which Ansaldi had given me.

All was dark within. I switched on the light, when, before me, upon the little table, I saw the small green jewel-box.

In an instant I placed the attache-case over it and next second it had disappeared.

But as I did so, I heard a movement behind me, and, on turning, to my breathless horror saw, standing before me, the pretty, fair-haired young woman whom I had robbed!

"Well, Mr. Cottingham—or whatever your name is," she exclaimed in a hard, altered voice as, closing the door behind her, she advanced to me with a fierce light in her eyes. "And what are you doing here, pray?"

Then, glancing at the table and noticing her jewel-case missing, she added:

"I see! You have scraped acquaintance with me in order to steal my jewels. You have them in that case in your hand!"

I stammered something. What it was I have no recollection. I only know that my words infuriated her, and she dashed out into the corridor to raise the alarm, leaving me in possession of the trick bag with the jewel-case inside.

I dashed after her, seizing her roughly by the waist as she ran down the corridor.

"Listen!" I whispered fiercely into her ear. "Listen one moment. You surely won't give me away? Listen to what I have to tell you. Do—I—implore you," I said. "I am no thief! I will tell you everything—and ask your advice. No harm has been done. Your pearls are here."

"Yes," she said, turning back upon me. "But you—the man I liked and trusted—are a common thief!"

"I admit it," I said hoarsely as I dragged her back to her room, her dress being torn in the struggle. "I have been forced against my will into robbing you, as I will explain."

Back in her bedroom she assumed a very serious attitude. She invited me to sit down, after I had handed back her jewel-case, and then, she seating herself in an armchair, she said in determination:

"Now look here, George Hargreave . . . you see, I know your real name. I know your game. By a word I can have you arrested, while, on the other hand, my silence would give you your liberty."

"You will remain silent, Lady Lydbrook—I beg of you! I know that I have committed an unpardonable crime for which there is no excuse." I thought of that strange midnight scene I had witnessed and it was on the tip of my tongue to mention it. But would it further infuriate her? So I refrained from alluding to it.

"My whole future is in your hands," I added.

"Well," she said at last, "I am open to remain silent, and the matter shall never be mentioned between us—but on one condition."

"And what is that?" I asked anxiously.

"I am in want of someone to help me. Will you do so?"

"I will do anything to serve you if you give me my liberty," I said, much ashamed.

"Very well, then. Listen," she said in a hard, strained voice. "If you resolve, in return for my silence, to assist me, you will be compelled to act at my orders without seeking for any motive, but in blind obedience."

"I quite understand," I replied. "I agree."

"You must say nothing to a soul but meet me in secret in Paris. Stay at the Hotel Continental, where I shall stay on the night of the twenty-fourth. That is next Wednesday. At ten o'clock I shall be on the terrace of the Café Vachette in the Boulevard St. Michel. Remember the day and hour, and meet me there. Then I will tell you what service I require of you. I shall leave here tomorrow, and I suppose you will leave also." And she opened her jewel-case to reassure herself that her pearls and other ornaments were safe.

So she forgave me, shook my hand, and I went out of the room with the cold perspiration still upon me.

I made no report of my failure to Rayne, but on the following Wednesday night, after taking a room at the Continental, in Paris, a hotel which I knew well, I crossed the Seine at about half-past nine, and at ten o'clock sauntered up the boulevard to the popular, and rather Bohemian, Cafe Vachette, where at a little table in the corner, set well back from the pavement, I found her seated alone. She was wearing the same dark cloth coat in which I had seen her when she met the mysterious stranger at night at Eastbourne.

"Well? So you've kept the appointment(Mr. Cottingham!" she laughed cheerily as I sank into a chair beside her. "You'll order a drink and pay for mine, eh?" she laughed.

Then when I had swallowed my liqueur, she suggested that we should stroll down the boulevard and talk.

This we did. The proposition which she made without much preliminary held me aghast.

"Though I like you very much, Mr. Cottingham," she said as we conversed in low voices, "I cannot conceal from myself that you are a thief. Well, now, to be perfectly frank, I want a thief's help—and I know that, as we are friends, you will assist me. You know my inordinate love of jewels. Indeed, I wouldn't have married Owen if he had not given me my pearls. And you know the other ornaments I have—which I might very well never have seen again, eh?"

"I know," I said.

"Well, now, at the Continental there is at the present moment staying a Madame Rodanet, the widow of the millionaire chocolate manufacturer. She possesses among her jewels the famous Dent du Chat—the Cat's Tooth Ruby. It is called so because it is a perfect stone and curiously pointed, the only one of its kind in the world. I want it, and you must get it for me—as the price of my silence regarding the affair at Eastbourne."

I protested, and pointed out the risk and difficulties, but she met all my arguments with remarkable cleverness.

"I know Madame," she said. "I will make your path smooth for you, and I myself will spirit the jewel out of France so that no possible suspicion can attach to you," was her reply. "Will you leave it all to me?"

We walked on down the well-lit boulevard, my brain a-whirl, until at last, pressed hard by her, I consented to act as she directed.

I found, in the course of the next three days, that Lady Lydbrook's whole life was centered upon the possession of jewels of great value, and I was amazed to discover how very cleverly she plotted the coup which I was to carry out.

One evening, after dinner, she introduced me casually to the rich widow, an ugly overdressed old woman who was wearing as a pendant the famous Dent du Chat. It was, to say the least, a wonderful gem. But I passed as a person of no importance.

Next night with Lady Lydbrook's help I was, however, able to get into the old woman's bedroom and carry out my contract for the preservation of silence concerning the affair at Eastbourne.

I shall always recollect the moment when I slipped the pendant into Lady Lydbrook's soft hand as she stood in deshabille at the half-opened door of her bedroom and her quick whispered words:

"I shall be away by the first train. Stay here tomorrow and cross to London the next day. Au revoir! Let us meet again soon!" And she gripped my hand warmly in hers and closed her door noiselessly.

Ah! A week later I learned how, by Rayne's devilish cunning, I had been tricked. When I knew the truth, I bit my lips to the blood.

The Widow Rodanet had, it appeared, been staying at the Palais, in Biarritz, when Duperre and I had been there. She had been marked down by Rayne as a victim, for the Dent du Chat was a stone of enormous value.

The planned robbery had, however, gone wrong and we had been compelled to return to London. Then Rayne had conceived the sinister idea of sending me to Lady Lydbrook—who was not Sir Owen's wife at all but one of his agents like myself, and whose real name was Betty Tresidder—a girl thief whose chief possession was a rope of imitation pearls.

I, alas, dropped into the trap, whereupon she, on her part, compelled me to steal old Madame Rodanet's wonderful ruby; and thus, though I confess it to my shame, I became an actual thief and one of Rudolph Rayne's active agents.

Carpentier On Way

PARIS, May 8—Georges Carpentier, off for his fight in America with Tommy Gibbons, clambered aboard the boat train today amid the plaudits of some 100 of his followers.

Two years ago when he sallied forth with the idea of conquering Jack Dempsey, the police reserves were summoned to protect him from being mobbed by thousands.

Tommy Already In Good Shape

CHICAGO, May 8—Ten days, or two weeks of boxing, will fit Tommy Gibbons, St. Paul light heavyweight, for his battle May 31, with Georges Carpentier, French pugilist, at Michigan City, Ind., the American boxer asserts. Saturday, he starts work at his camp near the fight site.

Gibbons plans to confine the bulk of his training to gymnasium and boxing, road work at home having brought him to 186 pounds, and he expects to lose about ten more. Handball, shadow boxing and workouts with sparring partners constitute his program here.

Mrs. Gibbons and three children will move to Michigan City to remain during the training period.

Twenty-Four Years Ago

C. J. Mock and John X. Goldcamp, of Ironton, were initiated into River City Council U. C. T.

John Jackson, of this city, entered upon his duties as messenger in the United States District Court. He was appointed by Judge A. C. Thompson.

A fine baby boy weighing 8 1-2 pounds came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Shump, 1501 Chillicothe street. The new arrival was the fifth boy in the family.

Peter Revare was chosen as health officer by the board of health, and Dr. L. A. Vernier was named as city physician. John Bernult was elected as clerk and Henry Davidson was given the job of cleaning the market space.

Rob Calvert sported a badly damaged nose, as the result of trying to run over a wire fence at Camp McCollough.

STOCK PRICES SHOW REACTIONARY TENDENCY

Oils Heavy; Rails Firm; Standard Industrials Record Fractional Recessions

NEW YORK, May 8.—Desultory price movements characterized today's stock market, one of the dullest full days' session this year. Oils yielded readily to selling pressure on reports of another increase in crude production. Allied exchanges were decidedly weak. The closing was irregular. Sales approximated 500,000 shares.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Stock prices moved irregularly lower at the opening of today's stock market with most of the standard industrials recording fractional recessions on initial sales. General Electric dropped a point. Oils again were heavy but the rails held relatively firm.

Prices developed a more reactionary trend as trading progressed but recessions as a rule were held to a point or less. American Can, Baldwin and Studebaker each sold about a point or below yesterday's final figures while Yellow Cab, Goodyear prior preferred, Atlantic Coast Line and Famous-Players dropped a point or more. Interborough Rapid Transit, up 1¼ and New Orleans, Texas and Mexico, up ¾, were among the few issues to move against the current trend. Foreig exchanges were weak, demand sterling showing an overnight drop of about two cents at $4.36½.

Weakness of the foreign exchange markets and reports of another increase in crude oil production by the American Petroleum Institute were regarded as contributing factors to the morning selling.

Trading, however, was relatively light in volume. Oils were the hardest hit as a group, Atlantic Refining dropping nearly 5 points and General Asphalt, Pacific Oil, Producers and Refiners and Sinclair losing a point or so, the last named duplicating its previous low of 18⅝. Baldwin and General Electric extended their early losses to 1½ points each, while U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, American Radiator, Central Leather preferred, Marine preferred, Corn Products and Mack Truck were added to the list of stocks to sell a point or so below yesterday's final figures. Call money opened at 3½ per cent.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, May 8.—Resumption of speculative operations in the foreign exchange markets abroad today brought abrupt declines of more than two cents in sterling and about 24 points in French francs in the local market. Sterling, after dropping to $4.36 encountered a support and rallied ⅜ of a cent while francs sold at 6.10c as compared with yesterday's final quotation of 6.34½ cents and a high price of 6.63 cents earlier this week.

Fear that thestrike of miners and threatened outbreaks in the Ruhr might delay a reparations settlement was seized upon by market operators abroad as an excuse for attacking allied currencies, according to exchange dealers. The heavier selling, it was said, originated in London.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Foreign exchanges weak, quotations in cents:

Great Britain: demand 4.36..; cables 4.36⅝; sixty day bills on banks 4.33⅝.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Directors of the Federal Light and Traction company have declared an extra dividend of 75 cents on the common stock, payable in six per cent cumulative preferred stock, in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of $1. Both are payable July 1 to stock of record June fourteenth.

The International Harvester company doubled its prfoits in 1923 and reports a surplus of $1,064,868 for the year compared with a deficit of $7,522,825 in 1922. Net profit for 1923 was $10,274,376, equal after preferred dividends to $6.06 a share on the common stock against $5,540,768, or $1.25 a share the year before. Operating income was $18,237,836, a gain of nearly $7,000,000. Profit and loss surplus totalled $51,308,173 after deducting dividends.

The Willys-Overland company sold 5,700 cars last week, a new company record for a week's retail sales.

An issue of $6,522,000 4½ per cent bonds of the City of Cleveland leads the list of new offerings today, priced to yield 4.30 per cent on maturities up to 1929, 4.35 per cent on the 1930-1939 maturities and 4.30 per cent on the 1955 maturities. Others included $1,150,000 first closed mortgage serial sinking fund 6½ per cent gold bonds of L. W. Tuller, Detroit, at par to yield 6.50 per cent and $148,000 Zanesville, Ohio, street improvement 5 per cent bonds at prices to yield from 4.50 to 4.60 per cent.

The output of steel ingots in the United States in April is calculated at 3,386,256 tons by the American Iron and Steel Institute compared with $4,187,942 in March and $3,963,736 in April, 1923.

The Ford Motor company of Canada shipped 32,537 cars and trucks between January 1 and May 6, compared with 29,028 in the corresponding period of 1923. Of this amount foreign sales numbered 13,376.

Measured in pre-war gold dollars, the national income in 1923 of the nations actively engaged in the Great War was $81,700,000,000 according to the Bankers Trust Company of New York. This compares with an estimated pre-war national income for the same nations of $93,050,000,000.

Explanation for some of the recent market activity in United States Cast Iron Pipe stock is found in the report that W. C. Durant, automobile manufacturer is planning to offer participating units to the public on a basis which would be equivalent to a market price of about 90. Through a separation organization Mr. Durant already has sold blocks of Fisher Body and other stocks to small investors.

ALL GRAINS SHOW A DOWNWARD TENDENCY

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

NEW YORK, May 8.—Stocks: irregular, four oils at new lows.
Bonds: heavy; foreign liens react with exchanges.
Foreign exchanges: weak; francs break forty points, then rally; sterling off.
Cotton: higher; bullish crop advices.
Sugar: steady; Cuban buying.
Coffee: lower; European selling.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

Wheat: easier; better Argentine labor reports.
Corn: lower; liquidation.
Cattle: steady to firm.
Hogs: active and steady.

CHICAGO, May 8.—All grain showed a downward tendency in price today during the early dealings. Commission houses were generally on the selling side. In the wheat market, trade was broader than of late, with the chief bearish factors the outlook regarding farm legislation at Washington and the reported virtual collapse of the Argentine strike. Wheat opening prices which ranged from ⅛ to ⅝c lower, May 1.03⅝ to 1.04 and July 1.05 to 1.06 were followed by a slight further decline.

Final quotations were unsettled, ⅜ to ⅝ net lower, May 1.03¾ and July 1.05Z to 1.05⅝@¾.

Corn dropped nearly to 75 cents for May delivery, the lowest price in some time. Buying support became less in evidence as the fall of values continued with standing orders being automatically forced into action to stop losses at certain levels. After opening ⅛ to ¼c off, May 77¾ to 76c and July 77⅜c, the market rallied a little but then underwent a material setback.

The market closed unsettled ⅝c net lower to ¼c advance, May 75⅞ to 76 and July 76⅝ to 76⅝@¾.

Oats started at a shade to ⅛c lower, July 44⅛ and later made a further descent.

Provisions were steadied by an upturn in hog values.

Selling and Buying Strike Fairly Even Balance in Bonds; Slight Change in Prices

NEW YORK, May 8.—Buying and selling struck a fairly even balance in today's early bond trading, with the available run of prices showing little changes. Several outstanding movements, however, were traced to special developments. The abrupt decline in French francs influenced selling of French municipal issues, all of which displayed a heavy tone. Sinclair Consolidated Oil bonds were unloaded as reports of new financing persisted, the company 7's dropping 2 points to 88⅛, the year's lowest level. Conflicting price movements marked dealings in the Wilson convertible liens, a loss of 1¼ points in the sixes being counteracted by a similar gain in the 7½'s.

Petroleum Issues Drop on Curb

NEW YORK, My 8.—Petroleum issues again demanded attention on the curb exchange today because of an increase in pressure attributed to the showing made in the American Institute report of Petroleum production last week. This recorded the daily output as 8,000 barrels larger than each day of the preceding week. Statements emphasizing the backward season and under consumption also were effective in causing a receding tonight in this group and while declines in the majority of issues were slow, the level now shows a substantial difference from prices prevailing a short time ago.

Standard Oil of Indiana declined to 57⅝, only a fractional loss today, but compared with 61 a short time ago. Prairie Oil dropped 3 points to 218 but later rallied. Other stocks in this group showed losses ranging from fractions to around two points. Lago Petroleum was exceptionally strong. Industrials were irregular, while public utilities continued strong. American Power and Light, which was in demand Wednesday made a further gain of six points. National Tea which approved the 150 per cent stock issue yesterday, started with a loss of 3 points and then moved up to 360. Glen Alden Coal continued its upward movement, advancing 2 points to a new high record. Hudson preferred was another strong feature, moving up to a new high. Durant Motors had a further decline again lowering its record and Doehler Die Casting, after showing firmness for a few days, was under pressure and had a fractional decline.

Mining stocks were quiet and with few exceptions but showed a steady tone.

SOCIETY

Mrs. Thomas J. Maxwell, of Fremonth, Ohio, department president of the Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion of Ohio, will come to Portsmouth on Wednesday evening, May 14th, to address the Auxiliary. Mrs. Maxwell was scheduled to come on the twelfth, but was unable to do so at that time and all members are urged to note the change in date and be present in their hall at 7:30 o'clock on the evening of the 14th. Each member may also being a guest. Mrs. Maxwell is a very forceful speaker and she will have an interesting message for all. She will also explain the aims and ambitions of the Auxiliary at this time and it is hoped that she will be greeted by a large audience.

Mr. and Mrs. Rex Wright of Vinton avenue have had as guests during the past few days her mother, Mrs. Mary Wright of Piketon, and her daughter, Mrs. Katherine Hamilton and two children of Waverly.

Messrs. Garnet Neff of Mound street and William Scuggs of Robinson avenue, students at Ohio State University are spending the week-end with home folks.

The East Portsmouth W. C. T. U. will meet on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Albert Reiser on Offnere street. The assistant hostesses will be Mrs. Emma Rickey, Mrs. R. A. Bowser and Miss Lena Helbig. A full attendance is urged.

New Treatment For Varicose or Swollen Veins

Swollen veins are dangerous and often burst. Sufferers are advised to get a two-ounce, original bottle of Emerald Oil (full strength), at Fisher & Streich's Pharmacy, and start to reduce the veins and bunches at once.

Physicians recommend Emerald Oil; it is used in hospital practice and a small bottle will last a long time, because it is very concentrated and a little goes a long way. Apply night and morning with a soft brush as directed until the swelling is reduced to normal. It is guaranteed.

So marvelously powerful is Emerald Oil that enlarged glands, wens and even goitre disappear when used steadily.—Advertisement.

Come Again, Johnny

K. O. Johnny Michaels of Jamestown, New York, was evidently trying to start something when he sent in a challenge to box Frankie Susnell of this city. Johnny in his challenge claims to have won over Susnell in Sharon, Pa., but he must have reckoned that Frankie does not preserve the newspaper clippings after his bouts. At any rate the Sharon Telegraph says that Frankie won decisively and knocked the Jamestown boy for the count of nine in the second round.

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why ointments do not give you quick and lasting relief?

Why you know why ointments do not give you quick and lasting relief?

Why cutting and operations fail?

Do you know the cause of piles is internal?

That there is a stagnation of blood in the lower bowel?

Do you know that there is a harmless remedy discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEM-ROID, now sold by Wurster Bros., and druggists generally, that is guaranteed?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the cause, by freeing blood circulation in the lower bowel. This simple home treatment has an almost unbelievable record for sure, safe and lasting relief to thousands of pile-sick sufferers. There is no reason why it should not do the same for you.—Advertisement.

WORN-OUT?

That tired, worn-out feeling — that lack of energy and ambition — that nervous rundown state — are all pretty certain indications that your blood is getting thin and pale. Without rich red blood, neither your body nor brain can work right and as a result you don't seem to get anywhere in anything you attempt.

This is the time of year when you should build up increased strength, vitality and power of resistance against disease, by getting more iron into your blood. But to take the ordinary metallic forms of iron may prove worse than useless. What you need is the newer form of iron—organic iron like the natural iron in your blood—which is now prepared in simple, easy-to-take tablets called Nuxated Iron.

If you feel tired in the morning, restless at night, if you suffer from weakness or lack of vitality simply try taking two Nuxated Iron Tablets with each meal for two weeks and note the amazing change in your health, vigor, energy and endurance. You should be astonished at the results in even a few days time. Satisfaction is guaranteed or the druggist will refund your money. —Advertisement.

ANOTHER PANACEA PARALYZES

FIFTEEN years ago those who would cure everything by law were furiously advocating the bank guaranty law as a cure for all lame ducks in the financial business.

Oklahoma, which just then was in a rage of progressiveism, was the first to try on the panacea. It worked most admirably, as the state was undergoing a tremendous development, values were going higher and higher and no man could sell anything for less than he paid for it. But the boom reached its pinnacle and the boom deflated. A big bank failed and the guaranty fund vanished almost over night. Another and then another bank failed. The remaining member banks could not pay the mounting assessments the situation demanded without collapse themselves. Many of the stronger ones sought refuge by changing to national banks, these not being embraced in the guaranty scheme. That simply made a bad situation worse. The legislature was forced to repeal the guaranty scheme and another bubble burst.

Six other states have the guaranty system, but in all of them it is sadly wobbly.

PERENNIAL IDEALISM

ALL Americans may be called idealistic on one subject. During and since the world war this idealism rose at times to feverish heights. It was on the tongues of the nation and in the minds of all. During the last two or three years of world reconstruction and disillusionment American idealism has cooled considerably. The disillusionment may have been the quenching element.

Our common ideal was centered in the thought that the United States had been chosen from among the nations to lead the world to peace, enlightenment and economic content. We continually talked of how all the world was watching America and dependent upon it like so many infant mouths upon the providence of a common parent. These thoughts tickled our national vanity and perhaps for that reason more than any other we harbored and nurtured them. But it is with a shock to our national complacency that we read that John Ruskin 60 years ago lectured to his Oxford University classes in the following vein:

"There is a destiny now possible to us, the highest ever set before a nation to be accepted or refused. We are still undegenerate in race; a race mingled of the best Northern blood. We are not yet dissolute in temper, but still have the firmness to govern and the grace to obey. Will you youths of England make your country again a royal throne of kings; a sceptred isle, for all the world a source of light, a centre of peace; mistress of learning and of the arts, faithful guardian of time-tried principles, under temptation from fond experiments and licentious desires; and amidst the cruel and clamorous jealousies of the nations, worshipped in her strange valor, of good-will towards men?"

So reading back into the ages we might find that each new-born nation cherishes the thought of saving an old and corrupt world from itself and then one wonders where the next new nation will rise up to carry on the standard of world salvation.

VANDALISM

WHEN spring brings out the wild flowers and the roadside greens every man, woman and child becomes a lover of nature, but so many of these impassioned lovers must pluck the object of their love. They are not content to look upon the new-found beauty but must jealously appropriate it to themselves. With them flowers grow to be picked.

All outdoors has adorned itself with floral raiment of gorgeous hue. The woods, fields, lanes, hills and valleys are ablaze with color and beauty. Everywhere the little wildflowers rear their innocent heads, the green shrubs line the roadsides and bursting buds reveal beautiful secrets.

To many persons the temptation to destroy these pictures is irresistible. They find no ecstacy in merely looking at nature's spring-time verdure. They must loot the meadows and the hillsides. Their cars must go home laden with blossoms that are not meant for vases in the home. Nature provides its own vases for these blooms and the flowers that are plucked from their setting become like orphans, miserable, drooping and homesick.

Newspapers and nature lovers throughout the land find it necessary to remind a thoughtless public of the consequences of this vandalism. Vandalism it is, for many persons are not content with the flower, they must take the stem and the root as well. Eventually of course, this means extermination of the wildflower. That point has been reached in some instances.

As nature invites its people to the great open spaces at this time of year with a cordiality that is unmistakable, her visitors ought to be considerate enough not to wreck her home and make it a desert. A moment's thought will make a normal person aware of the seriousness of the situation.

NEW YORK DAY-BY-DAY

BY O. O. Mc INTYRE

NEW YORK, May 8—Gotham is a city of dreadful debt and its people pay a high tax on their profligacy trying to get even. Nine out of every ten men are harried by bill collectors. They try to get ahead by taking long chances in gambling games.

There are scores of race tipping bureaus that make huge sums peddling dubious information. One morning newspaper derives its biggest revenue handling advertising for tipsters. Now and then a 100 to 1 shot wins and this buoys hope.

Nearly everybody is stalking quick fortnunes. Clerks spend their luncheon hours studying "past performances" of race horses. Policy and lottery games thrive. Bunco stock salesmen are always able to find customers by making big promises.

New York is one of the easiest cities in the world in which to contract debt. Tradesmen, big and little, encourage charge accounts. And those who charge are given better service. They buy more if they don't have to pay cash.

There are many young men on moderate salaries who have been able to run up one thousand dollar accounts in hotels. Before Delmonico's closed there was a suit filed against a youth for $1,358. His salary was $45 a week. He had given dinners amounting to the big sum.

A Fifth Avenue haberdashery was stung for $750 for silk robes, hosiery and scarves purchased by a youth who clerked in a chan cigar store at $22 per week. The lad came from a middle west town and had been here only three months.

He said he opened the account by selecting a tie and asking that it be delivered to his boarding house. He intended to pay but when the clerk said "Charge it?" he said "Yes"—and there were no questions asked. So he ran up the big bill.

The most prosaic looking man I have ever seen is one who has had more thrilling adventures than almost any man in New York. He is William Beebe. He is an expert ornithologist and is a keen student of wild life in the tropics and the jungle. He seems always to be just returning from some barbarous island on the outer rim of the world. He is tall, bald and lantern jawed

The Hotel Savoy is to be torn down, it is rumored, and the largest hotel in town will soon grace the site. It was built in 1906 and is called an "old" hotel in the same fashion that the Waldorf built 10 years earlier is referred to as historic. The average life of a New York hotel is from 10 to 15 years. Two of the oldest hotels in New York at present are the Murray Hill and the Park Avenue.

They found a subway guard, who had a day off, riding with a fellow subway worker the other day. It developed that subway workers for some reason have few friends outside of their fellow workers. They cling together.

The last time I rode in the subway I sat next to one of those high priests of blah. He is a sort of cheer leader for one of those more-pep-in-your work organizations. He bristles with energy. Yet I noticed he was wasting the precious moments he eulogizes in agentle doze. When a lurch of the train brought him to consciousness he seemed suffused with guilt and began making furious notes on a pocket pad. My guess is that he was accomplishing just as much dozing. I have for some time wanted to head a movement to put the yawn in business to take the place of the punch. Something must be done to counteract the hurry up propoganda or before we know it they will have all of us working.

FRIENDS

Friend after friend departs;
Who hath not lost a friend?
There is no union here of hearts
That finds not here an end;
Were this frail world our only rest,
Living or dying, none were blest.

Beyond the flight of Time,
Beyond this vale of death,
There surely is some blessed clime
Where life is not a breath,
Nor life's affections transient fire
Whose sparks fly upward to expire.

The Frenzied Copy-Writer

It was the last quarter and the score was tied. Montmorency was at bat. He'd show them. "I'll make that eight ball in the side pocket or die in the attempt," he said as he eroclously adjusted his helmet. "Serve," he cried, and the gallery roared their approval. The puck was now in his possession. Magnifitently he dribbed it to the very shadow of the goal post, when, horror of horrors, someone fumbled and the opposing teams recovered. Using a right to the heart and a cross to the jaw, which seemed to bewilder Montmorency's Demons somewhat, the opposing team gained steadily. Not for long, however, for Monty, crafty athleto that he was, intercepted a faux pas, hopped a Yellow and rode three miles for a touchdown.
